Webster may close, Lake reopen

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Before the District 9 board could even reach the item on its agenda Tuesday night, a Webster School parent spoke out in favor of closing that building and moving students to the now-closed Lake School.

The board has called for a public hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 10, 1989, at Webster School, East 25th and Kate streets.

The Webster elementary building was constructed before 1900, officials said.

Jan Boyd's list of flaws at Webster closely matched those mentioned in a report prepared by Ron Landman, director of buildings and grounds for the district.

Boyd said that the building has a "bad exterior" and that the electrical system needed to be replaced. She also noted that restrooms no longer have warm water and that the tap water is often frigid.

"Using that water is like sticking your hands in a bucket of ice water," she said. "This is really bad, considering how much emphasis we put on the importance of hand-washing."

According to Landman's report, Webster School needs tuckpointing, a grounded electrical system, possibly a new heating system, playground and restrooms and expansion of office space and cafeteria facilities, among other things.

Earlier this year, Landman had estimated that the proposed move would cost the district between $186,000 and $256,000 to prepare Lake School.

Included in those costs are new lockers, cafeteria equipment, paint, flooring, window coverings, alarm systems, air conditioning, doors and asbestos management.

Last week, District 9 Superintendent Gib Walmsley said that no cost had been figured on restoring Webster, but that $100,000 "would not even begin to cover the barest of essentials."

Built before the turn of the century,

Webster has been in a rapid state of decline the last few years. Walmsley said that nothing short of a full-scale renovation could save the school.

Lake School is approximately 30 years old. It was closed in 1983 due to declining enrollment.

The Educational Therapy Center currently leases and occupies one wing of the Lake building but is investigating the possibility of leasing Louis Baer

Dan Partney sues Cruse

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse was named in a $1 million lawsuit filed yesterday on behalf of 4th Ward Alderman Dan Partney in Madison County court.

Also named as a defendant in the suit, filed by Leon Scroggins, is former Assistant City Attorney John Hopkins.

The suit alleges Partney was wrongfully accused of a felony due to actions taken by Cruse and Hopkins, together and separately, that were motivated for allegedly malicious political purposes and represented a perversion of their offices.

The suit also charges both with having slandered and libeled Partney.

Hopkins is accused of having circulated false accusations. The suit alleges he continued to publish and distribute slander and libel about Partney after the charges were dropped.

It alleges Cruse libeled Partney in material given to the Granite City Press-Record in April 1987 and continued to spread false accusations throughout Partney's prosecution.

Partney was indicted on a felony charge of official misconduct by a grand jury in January along with two Granite City police officers. The three were accused of cheating on a sergeant's promotion examination in July 1985 while Partney was president of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

The charges against all three were dropped in August. At that time, Partney said: "Now it's our turn."

LOOKING A LOT LIKE CHRISTMAS: Among the many homes in the Quad City area decorated for the Christmas season is the Michael Goodrich home at 2015 Pontoon Road. Hundreds of brightly colored lights line the sidewalk and driveway and a lighted Christmas tree and Santa Claus are illuminated on the roof of the house. Two large evergreens in the front yard also are covered with lights.

Armed robber takes $5,000 in bridge fees

VENICE — An armed robber forced the McKinley Bridge manager to get inside a walk-in safe and escaped with an estimated $5,000 in weekend bridge receipts shortly before 6 a.m. Monday.

Police are looking for a slender, clean-shaven black man, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, with short hair and a medium-dark complexion. He wore a cap, possibly a stocking hat.

Manager Tom Fields arrived at the McKinley Bridge Office in the 800 block of Main Street about 4:30 a.m. Monday to count money accumulated during the weekend in bridge toll fees, he told police.

About 5:50 a.m., Fields said, he had counted out $4,000 in currency which he placed on his office desk. Six green bank bags, containing money yet to be tallied, were on the floor.

At this point, Fields unlocked the front door of the building for business and returned to his office. A moment or two later, he heard the door open and close. Thinking it was an employee arriving or a customer, he stepped outside his office door.

Standing there was a man, between 25 and 30 years old, pointing some type of revolver at him, Fields related.

The man appeared to be nervous and whispered, "Get in the safe." Fields went into the walk-in safe and the man

Demo ouster not seriously taken locally

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — An anonymous letter suggesting a method to oust Madison County Democratic Chairman Bill Harrison wasn't taken seriously locally.

The letter, mailed to each of the county's 221 Democratic precinct committeemen, said it is time to make a change in the county chairman.

It contained copies of the state statute concerning political party organizations. It suggested that only 56 committeemen's signatures are needed to call a special meeting and recall Harrison.

"I threw mine away as soon as I got it," said Judy Whitaker, secretary of the Madison County

Mayor's Merry Christmas out, on-air aldermanic rules in

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A message has been airing on Channel 13 that wishes everyone a merry Christmas from Mayor Von Dee Cruse and his staff.

Fourth Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak objected Tuesday night that it was a political message.

At her request, the City Council passed a resolution to replace the mayor's Christmas message with one from all the council members, listing the names of all the aldermen.

As chairman of the Cable TV Committee, Perjak said the committee members should be allowed to see and approve prospective messages before they air.

"This is election time," she said. "God forbid that it gets used for political purposes."

Cruse said he thought that, since the council meetings are televised, Perjak's committee should come up with some rules of conduct to be followed.

"I've quit cussing on TV," said Ward Alderman Everett Morlen said.

"I think for the most part we all know how to conduct ourselves," 3rd Ward Alderman

Paul Fisk said. "In some areas, though, I think we need some simple rules listed out to help conduct ourselves in a little bit better fashion."

Fisk made a motion that Perjak's committee come up with some rules.

Seventh Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen said the council already had rules: Robert's Rules of Order.

"I'd like to ask what complaint Alderman Perjak has... I think it's different than Alderman Fisk's motion. I'd like to know, what is the question... What I really want to know is:

Mr. Mayor, are you advertising?"

"I'm wishing everyone a merry Christmas," Cruse said.

"From yourself," Perjak said. "And my staff," Cruse said.

City Clerk Bob Stevens read both Perjak's and Fisk's motions twice.

Fourth Ward Alderman Dan Partney said the mayor was responsible for maintaining order and questioned what else could be done short of having the police chief escort offenders out of the council chambers.

"I can see rules about the overall use of cable TV," Partney said. "But I can't see rules about conduct while being televised."

Fisk said the aldermen were there to conduct business and not get into political squabbles. He said it was not the place to announce political candidacy.

Third Ward Alderman Brett Hanke agreed with Fisk and then called for the question — a motion immediately seconded.

Cruse recognized 1st Ward Alderman Casmer Skubish, but City Attorney Mark Golding said the motion to call for the question, without further debate,

Cencom raises rates

Cencom Cable Television will increase its monthly basic cable rate by $2.50 — to $15.95 from $13.45 — on Jan. 1.

David Troxel, general manager for Cencom's Maryville-based office, said the new rate will still be competitive with the rates of other cable companies serving Metro East.

This will be Cencom's third increase in basic cable rates since purchasing South-Western Cable TV Ltd. in Maryville in 1986.

Cencom's last rate hike was in January 1988, when the cost for basic service increased by $2.50 per month, to $13.45 from $10.95. In January 1987, basic cable rates were increased by $1.50 — to $10.95 from $9.45.

When South-Western began serving this region in 1980, basic cable rates were $7 per month.

The rate hike in January is necessary because Cencom's programming costs are expected to increase by 40 percent in 1989, Troxel said.

Since the federal government deregulated the cable TV industry, local municipalities have had no input into rate increases.

Cencom has about 28,000 subscribers in Granite City, Collinsville, Maryville, Troy and Edwardsville.

Pastors defend Dortch's integrity

Area pastors describe Richard Dortch, a Granite City native and former PTL leader, as a compassionate minister and a man of integrity.

And Dortch's mother, Mary, of Granite City, said Jim Bakker, the evangelist who founded the PTL television ministry, used her son as a "scapegoat." The scandal has "upset and hurt" her 57-year-old son, she said.

On Monday, a federal grand jury in Charlotte, N.C., charged that Bakker and Dortch defrauded 150,000 contributors and used more than $4 million in contributions to support extravagant lifestyles.

Both men were charged with eight counts of mail fraud, 15 counts of wire fraud and one count of conspiracy to commit wire and mail fraud. Dortch, who once pastored an Alton church, is also accused of getting bonuses of $250,000. Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye, was not indicted.

Dortch is a graduate of Collinsville High School. Vicki Goodman Meadows, a Collinsville woman who has known the Bakkers for about 20 years, took charge of a national grassroots effort in June 1987 to return the Bakkers to the PTL television ministry. She could not be reached for comment this week.

(PTL stands for Praise The Lord and People That Love.)

The Rev. Louis Mattea of Caseyville said Dortch was a level-headed person and a strong spiritual leader.

"There's nothing really bad I can say about him," Mattea said. "When I thought about resigning from Washington Park Assembly of God Church, I called him to see if he would be interested in the position."

Democratic Central Committee and a Granite City precinct committeeman. "I don't like any letter with no name and I don't pay any attention to them."

Whitaker, who said she believed the letter originated in Granite City, said a new chairman would be elected before the next partisan election, so Harrison really isn't an issue now.

"It's just people stirring up (trouble). Some people just want to cause problems," she said.

Granite City Precinct Committeeman Bob Bell said he is no fan of Harrison, but said he didn't put much stock in anonymous letters.

"If someone had come to me I would have told them: 'Sign your name.' If you really believe something, you should have the guts to sign your name," Bell said.

Bell said he had been the target of an anonymous letter campaign when he ran for alderman and that his opponent, 4th Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak, had made a point of looking him up to tell him she was not responsible for it.

"Just reading what they've got here, the law they've got highlighted, I think it is talking about the Central Committee, not all the committeemen," Bell said. "I think it would take a lot less signatures, but signatures from specific people."

Whitaker said there are 45 members of the Central Committee. She also said that even if a special meeting was possible, she doubted there could be a legal recall.

Paul Ray Bowler and Dan Partney, both members of the Central Committee, also said they believed the law had been misstated.

"You of all people should know there is no recall of elected officials in the state of Illinois," Bowler said.

Whitaker said others had tried the same thing in the past and "I'm really tired of that stuff. But that's the way things seem to happen in Madison County. Politics really get dirty here, don't they?"

Harrison did not return calls by prestime.

Dortch

That's the confidence I had in him."

Later, in 1970, Dortch was elected as the superintendent of the Assemblies of God Church in Illinois, a position he held for 13 years until he joined Bakker in the PTL operation.

While Dortch served as superintendent, there were never any questions about how funds were being used, Mattea said. Dortch was always "above board," he said.

Dortch was the pastor of Edwards Street Assembly of God Church (now known as Abundant Life Christian Center) in Alton from 1963 to 1966. The Rev. George Cope is now the pastor of the church, and does not believe the indictment will affect local congregations.

"It's said that we have to face it 18 months later. He has publicly shared his failings with the church and with God, and he has been honest with the church and with the public," Cope said.

"He is my friend. My friendships are not based on what a person does or doesn't do. He needs friends now, and I'm not going to give up on him," Cope said.

"I don't think he would purposely be crooked," said the Rev. Maurice Burgund of the Assembly of God Church in Cottage Hills.

"I don't know whether he was charged because of something Jim did or what. I still respect him," Burgund said.

Dortch also was defended by the Rev. Dale Edwards of the First Assembly of God in Granite City.

Mary Dortch, 76, who with husband Harry moved from Collinsville to Granite City in 1972, said her son is "not one to tell us a whole lot" because he doesn't want to upset them with his problems.

She said her son didn't know about allegations of financial mismanagement at PTL or of Bakker's alleged sexual encounters until they became the focus of national media coverage.

Dortch was defrocked by the Assemblies of God in April 1987 after the allegations became public. His mother said the action "hurt him deeply."

Dortch now lives in Safety Harbor, Fla., and operates the Life Challenges ministry in Clearwater, Fla.

The ministry serves people who lost their jobs, suffer from the trauma of divorce or face severe economic, medical or mental problems.

"He's done extremely well," Cope said. "It opened a new door for him. It gave him an opportunity to help and strengthen people who need guidance."

After graduating from North Central Bible College in Minneapolis, Dortch served as a missionary in Brussels, Belgium. He and his wife, Mildred, have two grown children.

He also has a television ministry program in Florida, his mother said.

While he was superintendent, Dortch laid the groundwork for the creation of 100 new Assemblies of God churches, Cope said.

He also led the development of the Lake Williamson Christian Center south of Carlinville. The center houses retreats and church camps.

"It's one of the finest church camps in Illinois," Cope said.

Dortch visited Granite City in May and spoke at the First Assembly of God Church.

Discussing the local church in an interview with the Press-Record Journal, he said then, "It's because of this church that I entered the ministry. I want to kneel down at that altar and have the pastor and the elders of the church pray for me."

Dortch recalled growing up on Myrtle Avenue in Granite City, a long way from the PTL presidency, which he held for 40 days in 1987.

Council

had priority.

Skubish, who did announce he was seeking re-election at the previous meeting, and has been silenced by the same motion several times in the past, jumped up.

"But I had the floor. You recognized me," Skubish said to Cruse.

"The city attorney ruled me out of order," Cruse said.

The motion to call for the question passed 7-6 with Second Ward Alderman Pat Schuman out of the room.

Skubish didn't get to speak and Fisk's resolution for rules passed by a voice vote.

Area shelters provide good Christmas gifts

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — With Christmas just around the corner, dogs and cats are usually in large demand. Pet stores will boom with business.

An alternative to buying pets is adopting shelter animals. Locally, the Animal Protective Association (APA), 5000 Old Alton Road, and the Madison County Humane Society in Edwardsville offer a variety of animals to choose from at attractive prices.

At the APA, adoption supervisor Margaret Plisk said cats cost from $15-$20 and dogs range from $20-$40.

"A lot of people say, 'You guys don't destroy them. Why should we pay you?' The answer to that is that it's not fair to leave these animals in a cage," Plisk said.

She said the shelter currently has 30 cats and 12 dogs, many of Labrador, German Shepherd and Doberman mixes.

"There really are a lot of nice animals here which deserve good homes," she said.

Right now the Old Alton Road area shelter only has enough money to last through this month. The shelter faces about $2,000 in expenses monthly. The organization is run strictly on fundraisers, donations and with the help of pet food baskets set up in area grocery stores.

Because of mounting expenses, the shelter has stopped accepting animals and is attempting to place those it currently has. In the four and a half years of the organization's existence, only five dogs and three cats have been destroyed.

All of the animals at the shelter are old enough to go to homes with small children, making ideal family pets.

The Madison County Humane Society Shelter, 2160 East Illinois 143, Edwardsville, is suffering similar financial troubles.

The organization, which will be three years old in January, may have to vacate its shelter without proper funding.

"Unless something comes along, we can't make it," Sherry Harper of Granite City, president of the society, said.

The shelter houses three pens of dogs and eight cages of cats. It spends between $4,000 and $5,000 monthly.

"There really is no way to raise that kind of money every month," Harper said.

Despite the financial burden, the shelter found homes for 200 animals before it even moved into the shelter in March of last year. This year, almost 800 animals have been adopted.

Cats cost $20 and dogs cost $35. The shelter requires that the animals be spayed or neutered and $10 of the cost is refunded toward that procedure.

Both the APA and the Madison County Humane Society work with local veterinarians in a low-cost spay program.

"These animals have love and companionship to offer," Harper said. "Many of them have been neglected or abused and make excellent pets because they've been through that mess."

To adopt an animal, persons may go to either of the shelters or call the APA at 331-7030 or the Madison County Humane Society at 656-4465.

For those who are unable to adopt an animal but would like to send a donation, they may send them to the APA at 5500 Old Alton Road, Granite City 62040, or to the Madison County Shelter at P.O. Box #1, Edwardsville 62025.

Dog increases family's household, happiness

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Ask Pam Rogers how many children she has and she will say four — two boys and two girls.

Actually, she and her husband Kevin have two sons, Neal, 5, and Nolan, 11 months, and two female Irish setters, Sheena and Molly.

They adopted Molly in May 1986, the first adoption by the Madison County Humane Society.

Pam Rogers saw Molly's picture in a publication that she received in the mail. She and her husband both love big dogs and the prospect of adding another member to their household was a happy one.

"Just before Memorial Day we went up to meet her," Rogers recalled. "We just fell in love with her."

Molly was saved from death by turning up at the right place at the right time — a Humane Society bake sale.

"She was running around in the parking lot about to get killed," Sherry Harper, president of the Humane Society, said. "We finally corralled her but we couldn't get anyone to come and take her. I didn't really want to start taking animals yet...I was the last person there, so I brought her home with me."

As it turned out, Molly had heartworms, parasites that attack the dog's heart and, without proper treatment, cause irreparable damage and, ultimately, death.

"We spent all of the bake sale money fixing her up," Harper said. "It was worth every dime, though, in the long run to see her get a great home."

Together with Sheena, a stray Irish setter taken in by the Rogers family in 1982, Molly lives a carefree life. Both dogs are gentle with the Rogers children, nuzzling them lovingly or lying still as the boys crawl on or wrestle with them.

The dogs have their own beds but occasionally they like to go and visit Neal's room.

"They come and stay with me sometimes because they love me," Neal said, as he lay sprawled in between the dogs, patting one with each hand.

Molly knows when she's being talked about. At the sound of her name, her tail erratically thumps on the floor.

The setters recently accompanied the Rogers on their family vacation to Silver Dollar City.

"There was a gentleman down there who told us it was a shame that we didn't have any papers on them because they looked like they were thoroughbreds," Rogers said.

"It is really crazy for people to be paying outrageous prices for pure-bred dogs when they can get them at the shelter," Rogers said.

"Whenever we get another pet our first stop will be there."

Woman stops alleged theft, gets wallet back

GRANITE CITY — An alleged attempt to steal a wallet and flee from a supermarket resulted in four charges being filed against a Venice man at 7 p.m. Dec. 1.

Police arrived at National Super Market, 3100 block of Madison Avenue, and saw several people standing in front of the store, all pointing toward a car leaving the parking lot. Patrolman Ned Tapp blocked the path of the auto with the squad car.

Inside the car was Avery Turner Owens, 21, the Venice Homes, Venice, who eventually was booked on two counts of battery and charges of theft and disorderly conduct.

Steven Schneider, head clerk at National Super Market, alleged the man tried to steal a wallet and a fight had erupted when her son yelled that a man had reached inside her zipper.

Sandra Spurlock of Granite City said she was inside the store looking at greeting cards when her son yelled that a man had reached inside her zipper.

Spurlock didn't hesitate. She shouted at the man (later identified as Owens), who was walking down the aisle and then grabbed at his jacket.

Owens turned around and allegedly hit Spurlock on the right arm and tried to flee but the woman continued to hold on to his jacket while screaming for help.

Jack Bullington, 56, a meat cutter at the store, heard the noise and saw the man and woman struggling. He tried to find out what was wrong and heard the woman shout that the man had taken her wallet.

Bullington grabbed the front of the suspect's jacket and pulled it open, resulting a clutch-type wallet falling between the man's legs on to the floor, it was alleged.

At this point, Owens screamed and allegedly hit Bullington in the left arm with a magazine and his hand and succeeded in breaking free, running toward the front door.

En route to the door Owens was stopped momentarily by Kent Grillon, 20, a clerk-bagger at the store, who also had heard someone screaming.

A struggle ensued and Grillon and Owens fell to the floor, with the suspect pushing Grillon backward and escaping through the front door.

Owens got into the car which was blocked from leaving the parking area. No charges were filed against a man and woman who were in the vehicle with Owens, reports said.

Curable entering specialists' vocabulary more and more

By Andy Sierling
Staff writer

Most people still regard a diagnosis of cancer as a death sentence, said cancer specialist Dr. Abid Nisar.

But this is no longer always the case, he said.

"We have come a long way in the last few years. There has been tremendous progress," Nisar said.

"Some (cancers) are now curable — some of the lymphomas such as Hodgkin's Disease, testicular cancer and leukemias. Even in advanced stages."

Nisar, 35, and Dr. Shabbir Safdar, 51, are cancer specialists on the staff at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City. They recently opened a joint office here, located in Suite 105 of the Community Medical Arts Building, 2120 Madison Ave.

"Our goal is to bring top quality care to the Granite City community," said Safdar. "We can offer diagnosis, management and treatment of cancer and blood diseases in a setting that is familiar and therefore more comfortable for the patient."

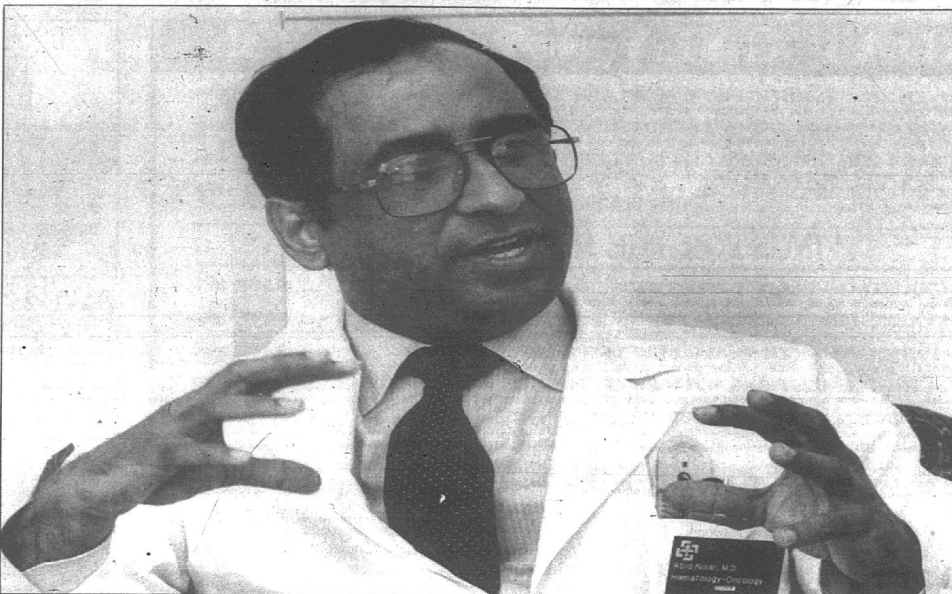

The office is for diagnostic and follow-up care, including outpatient chemotherapy. Patients needing further testing or radiation treatment will be referred to SEMC or Anderson Hospital in Maryville. Patients needing surgery or highly specialized care may be referred to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis. Being only minutes from home helps a patient's mental outlook, say the doctors.

"We try to minimize trauma associated with cancer treatment," Safdar said. "When a patient can feel comfortable and retain his self-esteem, the physical and mental benefits are tremendous."

Keeping a positive outlook may not necessarily mean a cure, however, warned Dr. Nisar. But he added that a good attitude helps a patient tolerate the discomfort of chemotherapy.

"We see clinically that a patient with a negative attitude does not do well," Nisar said. Originally from Pakistan, both Safdar and Nisar are on the faculty of Washington University's School of Medicine, one of the most prestigious in the country. Safdar has been an oncologist, or cancer specialist, for 18 years and previously had an office in Granite City from 1972 to 1982.

Nisar was a cancer and blood researcher before completing his medical training. Three months ago he finished a hematology-oncology fellowship at St. Louis University Hospitals.

While Dr. Safdar made rounds at Barnes Hospital, we talked to Dr. Nisar in their gleaming suite in the West Pavilion of Barnes' Queeny Towers.

Oncologists consider a person cured who remains cancer-free after five years. This isn't done to make medicine's cure rates look good, Nisar said, but because recent advances in treatment have not been around long enough to provide much of a statistical sampling, he said.

He said the data that exist suggest that with most cancers there is little chance of recurrence after five years. With some lymphomas, Nisar said, the definition of a cure is even shorter.

"If (patients) don't get it back in two years, there is very little chance they ever will," he said. Cancer treatment uses a long-established three-pronged approach: surgery, radiation, chemotherapy.

Surgery is used on isolated cancers. Radiation is used on tumors that have spread to adjacent tissues or are in areas where surgery is not recommended. Chemotherapy is used on metastatic cancers, in which the cancer has spread to multiple sites in the body (see What is Cancer? on this page).

Improved methods of chemotherapy represent the biggest advance in recent years, Nisar said. Besides effective new drugs to attack the cancer itself, new drugs have been developed to counteract the nausea and weight loss caused by the cancer drugs themselves.

Devices called "infuser ports" have been developed to make it easier to introduce the drugs, which often cause formation of scar tissue in veins.

But the biggest difference is the increased availability of bone marrow transplants, he said. Chemotherapy destroys bone marrow, which manufactures white blood cells, the body's foot soldiers in the fight against disease.

But doctors can now remove a patient's own bone marrow during chemotherapy and reinsert it afterwards — called an "autologous" transplant. Or they can match it with the bone marrow of a donor — called an "allogeneic" transplant.

Testing is on-going on new therapies such as stimulating the

What is cancer?

By Andy Sierling
Staff writer

There are more than 100 different types of cancers with wildly different symptoms and causes. They can strike any organ of the body; they can be tiny or massive.

But all share the same mechanism: an uncontrolled proliferation of cells.

Under normal circumstances, cell reproduction and growth proceed at an orderly pace and fashion. New cells are constantly being produced to replace old or damaged cells.

The difference between normal cells and cancerous cells is that normal cells know when to stop growing. Cancer cells don't. Eventually, so many accumulate that they form a mass of tissue known as a tumor.

The word cancer comes from the Greek word for crab, karkinos. The ancient Greek physician Galen observed that the blood vessels growing around a tumor seem to grasp it like a crab's claws.

In cancers of the blood or lymphatic system, no solid tumor develops, but so many cells of a single cancerous type accumulate that they swamp the system.

Cancer cells resemble the ordinary cells of whatever tissue they originate in, but they don't align themselves in the same way, nor do they behave the same. They grow in disorderly clumps and are like immature cells, incapable of carrying out normal cell functions.

Normal cells don't invade adjacent tissue. Cancer cells do. Moreover, they are capable of using the circulatory and lymphatic systems like a highway to travel to distant parts of the body, there to begin new growths — a process called metastasis. Metastatic cancers are the most difficult to treat.

It is important to note that 43 percent of all cancer patients will be alive five years after diagnosis, says the medical community. With early diagnosis and treatment, that figure jumps to 78 percent.

So timing is critical.

Nor are you likely to get cancers of the ear, nose or throat, he said.

Cancer specialists say light smokers are 10 times more likely to get lung cancer than non-smokers, and heavy smokers are 25 times as susceptible.

Other carcinogens include extensive exposure to the sun, low-fiber diets, and substances such as asbestos and dioxin.

Just in the St. Nick of time, a Christmas list

'Tis the season to be jolly, or mistletoe, of gifts and holly. It's also the season to beseech St. Nick for stuff. Like higher limits on our credit cards, and easier terms.

It's been a trying year, Santa, and we all could use a break. If the economy is in the green, shape the Republicans claimed it was during the election, how come everybody I know is broke?

As News Editor Mike Myers says, "Dear Santa: Don't send me anything. However, I am enclosing a list of my creditors."

That is from a guy who thinks "It's a Wonderful Life" was "one of the worst movies ever made." Dear Santa: Send Mike a lump of coal.

Send me one, too. But first, squeeze it hard enough to transform it into a diamond as big as the Ritz.

Here in the newsroom, Santa dear, we could use a couple more word processors. If you must, send us lap computers, even though we already have those. If we stand up from a terminal or more than two seconds, chances are we sit back down on someone's lap. Shuffle your feet, lose your seat.

Because it's the giving season, Santa, we thought we'd give a few folks a hard time, in the form of some suggestions for items you might send them.

Dear Santa: Please send...

For Ronald Reagan, a long winter's nap, postdated Jan. 20, 1989.

For President-elect George Bush, a platform to serve on, since he didn't have one to run on.

For Michael Dukakis, platform shoes.

For that noted golfer and C-student J. Danforth Quayle, something harmless and uncomplicated to do for the next four years.

For America, a full term for George Bush. Please!

For Mikhail Gorbachev, a jar of vanishing cream, not just for his birthmark but to make vanishing cream he's now giving in from all those raucous convicts the Soviet state kept subjugated for so long.

For Donald Trump and George Steinbrenner, a little self-confidence.

Locally, Santa, we humbly request...

For Mayor Von Dee Cruse, a surprise Christmas Eve visit from Wal-Mart mogul Sam Walton.

For talkative East St. Louis Mayor Carl Officer, a muzzle. And maybe a not-shot lawyer or two.

For Dick Allen, who recently ended his "practicum," as much success at setting convicts free as he enjoyed as State's Attorney.

For Shang Greathouse, a second chance to get his MESD tax hike passed. Either that or a great big pile of bailing paper.

For Redbird skipper Whitely Herzog, some pitching arms without scars on them.

For Phoenix Deabirds owner Bill Bidwell, a 10-megaton rap berry. Your team has finally rounded into its usual form, Billy-boy. Nyah, nyah!

For Granite City High School basketball coach Don Deterding or his successor, a player taller than 6-foot-2.

For pool shark and league commissar Gabby Eddleman, something to talk about. And maybe a sucker or two.

For Playmate model Lisa Luehmann of Pontoon Beach, something warm to keep the chill off.

For First Ward Alderman Casmer Skubish, the opportunity to speak at a Granite City Council meeting.

For TV viewers of the meeting, that the camera go dead just as Skubish rises to speak.

For Skubish's good buddy Everett Morlen, a dictionary of alternatives to cuss words.

For the entire council, the collected works of "Miss Manners."

For Madison Mayor John Bell, dinner with Ron Grzywacz, during which Grzywacz chokes on a turkey leg.

For Grzywacz, that somebody please Belloc's hands off the turkey leg in time.

For Charley and Carmen at El Gato, big boots or new plumb — and berbs in the saloon-keeper's Hall of Fame.

For everybody slandered in this column, a sense of humor.

Ditto for me.

For all of you out there, seriously, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. God bless us everyone.

Dr. Abid Nisar

Fields believed the door had been closed and did not try to reopen it, he said.

He remained in the safe for several minutes until he heard someone come into the office and he began pounding on the safe door.

Toll collectors D.D. Wilson and Mary Terrell heard the pounding and opened the safe door, telling Fields that it had not been locked. Neither of the employees had seen anyone leaving the office.

The $4,000 on the desk and the six bank bags were gone. The money the bags had not yet been counted, Fields said, but he estimated the bags contained about $800 in currency and $200 in coins.

THE ORIGIN OF THE CHRISTMAS CARD

Christmas cards, we all send and receive them, some of us with joy in our hearts and others silently muttering oaths damning the Postal Service for raising the price of the stamps we affix to each card.

For years I have secretly harbored the belief that the Christmas Card was invented either by Mr. Hallmark in Kansas City in the early 20th century as a promotion for his fledgling greeting card business or by an early Postmaster General as a way for the Postal Service to show a profit for the end of the year. Recent research has shown me to be incorrect in these beliefs.

Who actually devised the first Christmas card is a subject of debate. However Mr. Hallmark or a long since departed Postmaster General have been stricken from the list of candidates. The two most likely candidates are Englishmen who lived in the middle of the 19th century. W. C. T. Hobson and John Horsley.

In the fall of 1843, Mr. Horsley brought several designs depicting charitable acts to a London lithographer Sir Henry Cole. He suggested to Sir Henry that his designs could be reproduced in quantity and distributed at Christmas time it may help to revive interest in Christmas, which at that time had fallen into disfavor, with the common people. In 1843, Sir Henry reproduced 1000 copies of the card, had them hand colored and put on sale at Felix Summerly's Treasure House on Bond Street.

In 1844, W. C. T. Hobson sent a sketch to a friend that to him symbolized that spirit of Christmas. The following year he had copies lithographed and sent to his other friends. Though a year earlier than Horsley's card, not many people knew of its existence because it was never actually put up for sale.

It took many years for the idea of the Christmas Card to catch on. At first, printing costs were prohibitive but the invention of the chromolithographic process in the 1860's led to cheap color reproduction and brought the price of Christmas cards within the reach of most people.

In 1863, the Illustrated London News first advertised Christmas stationary. Punch made mention of Christmas cards in 1868 and the London Times

THE LAW AND YOU
BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes a man and woman will obtain a divorce, and the question arises as to whether or not a stepfather can obtain custody of the children. Under Illinois law, a natural parent has a superior right to the custody of his child. However, that right is not absolute and must yield to the best interests of the child.

In one recent case, a Baptist minister married a woman who had a 13-year-old son. After the husband and wife separated, the trial court found that the boy was an abused minor. The court found that the 13-year-old was inappropriately disciplined by his mother. The boy was placed with the Department of Children and Family Services.

The trial court later found that the mother was unable to care for, protect, train, and discipline the boy. The court felt it was in the best interests of the child to be placed in the custody of his stepfather. It should be noted that the whereabouts of his natural father was unknown. The mother appealed the decision, arguing that it was not in the best interest of a 13-year-old boy to be placed in the custody of a man who was unrelated but that he should instead remain with his natural mother.

The Appellate Courts of Illinois have ruled that the parents' right to the custody of their child shall not prevail when the Court determines that it is contrary to the best interests of the child. If the "best interests" standard can be attained only by placing the child in the custody of someone other than the natural parent, it is unnecessary for the Court to find the natural parent unfit to care for the child.

In the case noted above, the social worker observed that the 13-year-old boy considered his stepfather as his "father". The boy noted that the stepfather disciplined him, but did so in a fair manner. The boy and his stepfather had a great deal in common, especially a mutual interest in sports. By contrast, the 13-year-old boy said he was afraid of his mother because she was so unpredictable and physically abusive. The boy's wishes, coupled with the abusive disposition of the mother, led the Appellate Court to affirm the decision of the trial court and grant custody of the 13-year-old to his stepfather.

Teens get AIDS info

Illinois Public Health Director Bernard J. Turnock, M.D., has kicked off a series of school visits across the state as part of a new broad-based effort to educate teenagers about AIDS.

Turnock said adolescents represent a vulnerable age group because many of them are likely to be sexually active and experiment with drugs and alcohol.

The director said teens need to know they are at risk of a potentially fatal disease.

The department's special emphasis on teens' this school year encompasses a number of new initiatives and involves many of its programs. They include:

• A new educational brochure targeted at teens, due later this fall.

• Outreach to student newspapers to foster peer education through an AIDS reporting contest, circulation of a column written by an East St. Louis teen and educational sessions with high school journalists.

• Public service announcements featuring persons with AIDS to run in selected movie chains in Illinois.

• Co-sponsorship of a media campaign with the Illinois

Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse, WCNC-TV and the Chicago Tribune. The campaign will feature a one-week series of television programs, "Families in Touch: Understanding AIDS," and a special one-time newspaper supplement.

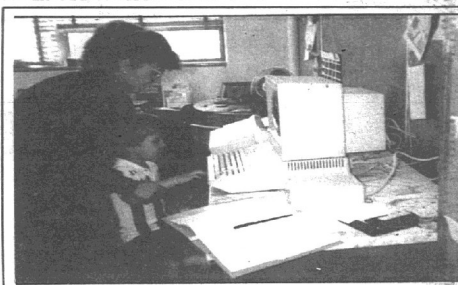

• A cooperative effort with the Illinois State Board of Education to assess current school AIDS programs, provide teacher training on AIDS and develop a resource list of AIDS information materials for kindergarten through 12th grade.

• Peer programs to provide education and counseling to reach youths outside school, including student dropouts, in recreational facilities such as YMCAs.

The virus that causes AIDS is transmitted through unprotected sexual activity, sharing intravenous drug needles and from mother to baby before or during birth.

As of Sept. 30, there were 2,159 Illinois AIDS victims; 85 percent of them have died.

Questions about AIDS can be answered by the state's toll-free hotline, 1-800-AID-AIDS, which can be reached 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week.

Anonymity adds to problems

Perhaps it's the way things are done in Granite City politics, but there is something deeply disturbing about two recent anonymous attacks on local officials.

Last month, City Street Superintendent Mac Warfield was victimized by a letter distributed door to door in many areas of town, accusing him of several unethical activities, mainly revolving around political favoritism.

Warfield, who has been accused of such in the past, tied the latest letter to a smear campaign aimed at derailing any hopes he has of winning the mayor's post, which he intends to seek next April. The list of "dirty deeds" isn't even timely, supposedly having taken place several years ago.

Then, in the last several days, Madison County Democratic Central Committee Chairman William Harrison of Granite City has been the target of a letter believed sent to most county precinct committeemen, encouraging them to vote him out of the position. That letter was also unsigned. The letter attempts to tell how the committeemen could legally vote Harrison out of office.

There has been much unhappiness among Democratic powers recently over Harrison's opposition to the retention of three judges who had failed to contribute a "fair share" to the party prior to the election. All three judges were retained by large margins.

While we openly disagreed with the way Harrison handled the judge issue, we place absolutely no faith in anonymous letter campaigns.

Anyone willing to offer a solution to a controversial problem should also be willing to put his name to it. The lack of gutsiness displayed in the Warfield and Harrison campaigns adds to the overall problems of the political process in Madison County. Particularly the Democratic party, of which Warfield is also a key member.

What is needed are men and women of courage, persons who are not afraid to stand up for what they know is right. Offering criticism, or making blanket accusations with little or no basis, does little to bolster public confidence in the political system.

Illinois Solidarity will not die

It might make a good horror movie title: "The Party That Wouldn't Die."

The Illinois Solidarity Party was created by Adlai Stevenson while he was running for governor two years ago. He wanted to avoid running as a team with the winner of the Democratic lieutenant governor nomination, since that winner was a follower of an extremist group.

Sadly, Adlai's instincts were good but the outcome was that he lost badly. Many who cast straight Democratic ballots just couldn't persuade themselves to vote for a third party.

Others have come forward to help keep Solidarity alive, and it retains equal legal standing with the Democratic and Republican parties in this state.

Because Stevenson received more than 6 percent of the votes in 1986, Solidarity gained status as an established political party. That required all 102 counties to hold a Solidarity primary March 15, 1988; fortunately, election officials were able to keep track of the onslaught of votes, 518.

Even though its presidential candidate did poorly in Illinois on Nov. 3, the State Board of Elections has just ruled that Stevenson's showing gave the party at least four years of life. And guess what is scheduled for 1990: another gubernatorial election.

The plot takes another twist in the Chicago municipal election, where former Alderman Edward Vrdolyak utilized the Solidarity label for a third-party bid for mayor in 1987. That keeps the party intact for both a special election for mayor in 1989 and a regular mayoral vote in 1991.

In the meantime, the people have spoken. Let the record show: for president, George Bush nearly 51 percent, Michael Dukakis nearly 49 percent and Lenore Fulani, 0.22 percent.

Perpetuate, define prosperity

Peace and prosperity were winning issues for President-elect George Bush. How much prosperity is there?

Depending on which campaign talks you heard, employment is at a record level; or, we are exporting manufacturing work, hoping we can "sell each other hamburgers" in service jobs rather than production jobs.

The Democratic staff of the U.S. Senate Budget Committee issued a report this fall showing that fully half of the 16 million jobs generated in the past eight years were at wages below the poverty level. It is commendable that so many jobs have been added, making the 1980s contrast sharply with the 1930s. But the staff cautions that both high- and low-paying jobs have increased at the expense of a shrinking base of middle-paying jobs.

Low-wage work expanded at more than twice the share of high-wage jobs, defined as four or more times the poverty level. For a family of four, the poverty level is $11,611. Those who earned less than that for full-time, year-round work are cited as facing a big problem — trying hard to raise their families but failing to lift them out of poverty.

Sixty-four percent of Americans still earn middle-level wages ($11,611 to $46,444) and it will be essential to guard their ranks as well as upgrading lower-paid workers. Many of the crises in the world begin in countries where everyone is either very poor or very rich.

As Henry Ford counseled, it is not only important to produce automobiles efficiently but also to have a nation whose workers can afford to buy them.

Area toy collection paying off

To the editor:

The toys for children program wishes to thank those who have already helped us. We do need more help. Our list keeps growing, and without your helping, it would be impossible for us to make sure every child will be happy Christmas morning.

Can you stand to think of how a child would feel after talking to Santa and then on Christmas not having any gifts to open? What would it be like not to see children's wide eyes of wonderment and excitement? It would be a sad world to live in.

We sometimes get sidetracked at this time of the year. Let us not forget, and remember that many years ago a special Child was born into this world.

We call His birthday Christmas and we hold that day close to our hearts. He has always taught us to love and have compassion for each other.

To be able to give with love from your heart is a great gift for one's self. If you have never shared food from your own kitchen or given clothes to someone who needs them badly, you have cheated yourself out of a great blessing.

Give someone a little kindness and a helping hand along the way. If nothing else, it will make you be thankful for what you have.

If any of you need help to give your children toys, or anyone knows a family that needs this kind of help, please call these numbers: 797-0094, 797-1531 or 931-6324. We don't ask for your life history, just that you need our help.

We wish everyone a happy and blessed Christmas. Wherever you go, don't leave Christ out of Christmas.

Sensitive reply to headline issue

To the editor:

I want to thank Dennis Grubaugh for his sensitive and generous reply to my rather irate criticism of the article headlined "Wheelchairs on Trip," appearing in Nov. 2, 1988.

Although I am the secretary of the Great River Valley Chapter of the Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities in Illinois, which numbers many people on the state payroll and many others with chronic health problems and limitations, I wrote the letter as a private individual, quite on the spur of the moment.

The articles and my letter were read at our monthly meeting, as are similar controversial or insensitive items concerning people with disabilities.

I want to assure Mr. Grubaugh that his personal attentiveness and the generosity of his response and its prominent positioning will also be brought to members' attention at our next meeting as a refreshingly positive action and public service.

There are 38 million people with disabilities in our country, constituting the largest minority (and usually the least respected), struggling to survive life's injustices, frustrating bureaucracy and the negative attitudes perpetuated by the general public.

It's a rough tightrope to tread, with no net underneath to cushion the falls. Thank you for your attention and concern.

Compassion needed for animals

To the editor:

I am writing this about a serious problem people have here in Venice: A pet problem.

In the past few months I have seen a series of pet deaths that I know weren't an accident. A couple of months ago, I was driving down Second Street in Venice, and about every half block in a four-block area there laid a dead cat and about eight kittens also dead. You could tell it was no accident — not eight at one time.

Since then, I have seen about a dozen more cats and dogs lying dead around Venice, but last night's was the worst incident I have seen yet.

A small kitten not even old enough to hardly walk was in the middle of the Venice Bridge and was trying to get out of the road.

I stopped, backed up, and was getting out of the car when another car came flying by and smashed it to death. I don't blame the person driving the car. I blame the person that was cruel enough to drop the poor little thing off on the bridge, and it had to have been dropped off. It wasn't big enough to have gotten there by itself.

I am not a pet lover and I especially don't care about cats, but to see this happen to any animal is terrible.

Please, if you have a pet you don't want and want to get rid of it, there are places to call and people who will take these pets if you don't want them.

Even to abandon these animals is a kind of death. Especially to leave them like the little kitten on the bridge, and the other kittens on Second Street that were killed.

This is a plea from the heart to all those people who do this. To see that little kitten killed last night saddened my heart. And not only did I see it, my small daughter saw it also. She cried herself to sleep over it.

So, please, listen to my plea. If you have an animal you don't want, call around or run ads in the newspaper. You'll see it does make a difference.

Taking our quest to the reader

This is a warning. In my never-ending quest for truth, justice and the American way (not to mention new readers), I'm taking a case to the public.

During the next several weeks, I'll be contacting a variety of civic organizations, governmental officials and community leaders to gather input on potential improvements being contemplated for the Press-Record and Journal.

What are our strong points? Our weak ones? What have we lost sight of through the years? Have we, as the community's only newspaper, failed in any areas that a competitive newspaper might be meeting?

More specifically: Do we have enough photos? Do our editorials pack punch? Does our layout encourage reading? Are you bored stiff when you pick up the paper? I consider those very important questions, and now that I've been here 12 weeks, I feel I have enough of a grasp on operations that I can legitimately ask them and react constructively to the answers.

Every administrator at every newspaper in America should be dissatisfied with the product he brings to the public. An editor's natural tendency is to find something that needs to have been done differently in each new issue.

More than that, however, in seeking change we fail to ask questions of the one person who counts the most — the reader.

So, I'm asking, if for no other reason than to convince myself we're doing a good job, I'd like to know that my time-strapped staff isn't wasting its time on stories that aren't being read.

I've heard a lot of criticism from people since I've been here. I've also heard a lot of praise. I expected both, and I also expected it from the sources — the more active people in the community and those who have been treated on by a story, correct or otherwise.

However, I still have yet to hear much from the "average" reader, and in that regard my ears are wide open.

Are you finished with Christmas shopping yet?

With less than three weeks until Christmas, have you finished your holiday shopping yet and did you find the stores more or less crowded than last year?

Harlon Keel,
Granite City

"We got about half finished. The stores are about the same as last year. And there are lots of sweaters; sweaters are the hot item this year."

Henry Brandon,
Granite City

"I've got mine all done, well at least 90 percent of it, anyway. I think the stores are less crowded this year than last year."

Pete Ferro,
Granite City

"I'm just about shopped out. We don't know what the kids want anymore. The stores are pretty busy this year, but we've had no problem finding what we were looking for."

Illinois representative again gets GOP post

By Edward T. Hearn
PRJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Bob Michel, announcing twin goals of helping President-elect George Bush and championing legislative reforms, won a fifth term Monday as House Minority Leader.

Michel, the Peoria Republican who prefers the title Republican Leader, was elected by acclamation by House Republicans meeting in open session in a cavernous Capitol Hill caucus room.

"We have tremendous obligation to our new President. I want to see us deliver for him the way we delivered for President Reagan, with devotion, loyalty and commitment," Michel said in his brief acceptance speech.

Michel retains command of 175 House Republicans in the minority for more than three decades — on the eve of a new Bush administration, which has pledged to lower the federal deficit without raising new taxes.

He said the opening rounds of the 101st Congress, which begins early next month, would almost certainly involve tough debate on taxing and spending policy and would require GOP support for a Bush budget blueprint still in the making.

But, switching the focus from the swollen deficit, Michel also outlined a plan for a series of reforms, including tighter enforcement of ethics violations, which he said, have become "a national disgrace."

The reform package, he said, would not mean "calculating the cost of every dinner roll eaten at lunch" or mean punishing wrongdoing which is "erratic, pervasive and felonious."

He capped his list of reforms by saying members should curb outside income in the form of honoraria and by hinting at legislation to stem the influence of political action committees (PACs).

"When 99.2 percent of incumbents get reelected, many of them without opposition, there is more than the PAC issue at stake. Democracy is at stake," Michel said.

Michel, a consensus builder who has managed to blend the interests of moderates and conservatives, was nominated for reelection by Illinois Rep. Henry Hyde and Ohio Rep. Willis Grad-son.

Greeted by thunderous applause, Michel said, "It's good to know you are still willing to hitch up this old workhorse because we Republicans have a lot of ground to plow in this Congress."

In other contests for GOP leadership in the House, Rep. Cheney, R-Wyo., ran unopposed for Republican Whip — the chief party vote counter and second in command behind Michel. Illinois Rep. Lynn Martin, R-16th, was running for the number-three spot — GOP Conference Chairman but lost the three-way race to California Rep. Jerry Lewis.

Michel, 65, became the Republican leader in 1980 after narrowly defeating Michigan Rep. Guy Vander Jagt. The win capped his climb to the party's summit, which began when he was an administrative assistant to Rep. Harold Velde of Peoria from 1963 to 1965.

Since his own election in 1956, Michel has held a host of important House GOP leadership posts. He also served on the powerful House Appropriations Committee and had prominent roles at Republican National Conventions to nominate presidential candidates.

As Minority Leader and the party's chief spokesman in the House, Michel has had the sometimes difficult task of keeping the GOP's two wings — moderate and conservative — pointed in the same direction.

During the decade he has been in charge, Michel has had to fend off attacks from the right. Rep. Newt Gingrich, the Georgia conservative who has advocated frontal assaults on the Democratic leadership, used to criticize Michel for not being tougher on former House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill.

From the other side, moderate Republicans have rejected the right's call to make abortion a central issue and instead have stressed a more liberal agenda on social and economic issues.

However, the frustration felt by the GOP's right and left never resulted in revolt or calls for the removal of Michel, who hoped that someday a Republican majority in the House would install him as Speaker.

Colossians 1:18 "... And he is the head of the body, the church."

Paul is speaking of Jesus in the scripture above. He is the head of the body, the church. The church, regardless of denomination, is made up of persons who have accepted Christ as their Savior.

Christ is the supreme example of a life surrendered to God. "Not my will, Jesus prayed, 'but thine be done.' His love for the Father, for the multitudes, and even for His enemies sets the example for us today.

The giving of His life for others, His selflessness, and the purity of His motives all serve to place Him as the undisputed head of the church. Yet, we discover the presence of Christ through the Spirit is with us, not over us. It is in us, never to leave us nor forsake us.

He is indeed worthy of our loyalty.

Hearings on violent crime, drug abuse

With Illinois set to receive nearly $5 million in federal funds to fight drug abuse and violent crime, the Illinois Criminal Information Authority has scheduled public hearings to gather information and ideas on developing new anti-drug and anti-crime programs using the federal money.

The first hearing was held Dec. 6 in Springfield and the two other hearings are scheduled for Dec. 13 and 14 in Chicago.

Witnesses include Terry Remelius, director of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois, and St. Clair State's Attorney John Barreccio.

The federal funds are part of the Omnibus Drug Initiative Act of 1988, which President Reagan signed into law on Nov. 18. The law merges into a single program the drug law enforcement component of the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986 and the criminal justice grant program of the Justice Assistance Act of 1984.

These two programs, which the Authority already administers in Illinois, have brought nearly $15 million to the state over the past four years.

Among other things, the funds have been used to expand specialized drug enforcement units around the state, to upgrade state and local crime labs, to install information systems in various county and local agencies and to support a statewide crime prevention campaign.

The new law authorizes $2.6 billion in additional federal spending, but appropriates only $500 million nationwide for the current federal fiscal year, including about $150 million for state and local drug and violent crime control programs.

Illinois' share of these funds is $4.8 million, which is substantially more than the $1.8 million in federal drug law enforcement funds the state received last year, but still less than the nearly $7.7 million Congress originally appropriated for anti-drug efforts in 1986.

The impetus in October, when Congress passed the omnibus drug act, was that federal spending on state and local drug law enforcement would increase dramatically," said J. David Coldren, executive director of the Authority. "And yet, we're still far short of the funding level promised back in 1986, when Congress first declared war on drugs."

"With only a modest amount of funds to work with this year, the testimony we gather during these hearings will be especially important," he said.

The testimony, along with statistical data gathered by the Authority, will be used to develop a statewide strategy outlining the programs that will be funded with the new federal money. The Authority plans to submit the strategy to the U.S. Department of Justice in late January, and expects to begin awarding funds to state and local agencies as early as February.

Twenty-one specific types of activities may be funded under the new law, which has been named the Edward Byrne Memorial State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance Program, after the rookie New York City policeman who was gunned down earlier this year while guarding the home of a witness in a drug trafficking case.

Excluding administrative funds, which can be up to 10 percent of the total, 65 percent of the federal money will be allocated to local units of government in Illinois and 35 percent to state agencies. In the first year of the program, every three federal dollars must be matched by one local or state dollar. In subsequent years, federal funds must be matched dollar for dollar.

In addition to creating the combined drug and violent crime control program, the new federal law reauthorizes the Victims of Crime Act, which has brought $4.7 million in federal money to Illinois over the past three years for programs to assist victims of crime, especially sexual assault, domestic violence and child abuse. The Authority is seeking testimony on this program as well during its public hearings.

State news

Barreccio speaks on anti-crime programs

St. Clair County State's Attorney John Barreccio and Terry Remelius of Wood River, director of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois, appeared Tuesday in Springfield before the first of three hearings on how to spend $5 million in federal funds to fight drug abuse and violence.

The testimony, along with statistical data gathered by the authority, will be used to develop a statewide strategy outlining the programs that will be funded with the new federal money. Sixty-five percent of the money will be allocated to local units of government in the state and 35 percent to state agencies.

Fresh holiday trees don't upset outdoors

Those who are concerned about cutting down a tree for the purpose of decorating it for just a couple of weeks should be aware that the billion dollar Christmas tree business doesn't upset the environment, according to a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Throughout the nation, about 35 million trees will be harvested for Christmas this year, while about 35 million more will be planted in farms throughout the country. These trees are usually planted in soil often unsuitable for other crops, thus preventing erosion and providing wildlife with habitat and visual appeal.

State seeks rebate for infant formula

The Illinois Department of Public Health has decided to seek rebates from infant formula manufacturers who supply products for the state's Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

The "open-market" plan calls for negotiations with infant formula manufacturers on a specific rebate for each can of the company's formula that is sold to a WIC client. The move is expected to earn the state as much as $15 million a year to let the state serve up to an additional 30,000 WIC clients.

Workers' insurance raise disapproved

Illinois Insurance Director John E. Washburn has disapproved a request to increase rates for workers' compensation insurance by an average of 36.9 percent. The plan would have affected Illinois employers who insure their workers' compensation exposure through the Illinois Workers' Compensation Assigned Risk Plan.

Washburn said a technical review by Insurance Department staff indicated that approval of the increase might have produced excessive rates for the 44,000 policyholders involved. A hearing will be held to determine all the factors.

Prettiest snowflakes for your Christmas tree can be crocheted like little dolls. Starch them stiff before you hang them.

If old paint on doors is cracked, it's smart to remove the old hardened, cracked paint before adding another coat. Using semi-paste chemical paint remover is easier than sanding or a heat gun.

It may be tougher to get adjustable-rate mortgages under new guidelines from the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac). If the down payment is less than 20 percent, borrowers must qualify for the higher, second-year rates of the ARM.

Fiberglass insulation around a water heater will save by helping the hot water stay hot. If the heater is electric, don't cover the electrical junction box or control box; if it's gas-fired, do not restrict the vent.

Beer fans say they aren't addicts

There was no connection between the Aug. 22, 1988, relocation of British drinking hours and my late-October visit to England. Actually, I never have acquired a liking for beer.

But I have acquired a liking for pubs ("public houses"), which emphasize food, sociability and an atmosphere where all members of a family can feel comfortable.

The only problem I encountered was that pubs are so popular they tend to be overcrowded.

WHAT HAPPENED ON Aug. 22 was the repeal of a 73-year-old ban on afternoon drinking in pubs. The ban was imposed during World War I to prevent munitions workers from imbibing in the afternoon.

It was confusing to patrons, particularly tourists, who were ejected after lunch and had to stay away for several hours.

Authorities said repeal is intended to end such arbitrary rules and to avoid last-minute rushes through traffic to beat the early-afternoon closing hour. Surprisingly, many pub operators were not enthusiastic about the change. They questioned whether their increased business would offset the higher costs of staying open all day.

THE REPEAL ACTION was headline news in the fall/winter 1988 edition of Heads Up, the full-color newsletter of Beer Drinkers of America, based in Costa Mesa, Calif.

BDOA Executive Director

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winters

Paul Fagan sees his organization's mission as establishing itself as:

"A national voice representing constituents in areas of legislative concerns, such as... 'Taxation, and the government's definition of what constitutes the exercise of responsible personal behavior.'"

ALSO HEADLINED in Heads Up was the Iceland Parliament's decision to allow "strong" beer starting in March 1989.

Until then, Iceland will be known as "Europe's only brew-free zone."

Citizens of the North Atlantic island nation of 250,000 will now be able to buy beer in state liquor stores.

Iceland's two breweries, currently producing beer for export only, will be able to make their products for domestic use.

Beverages containing alcohol were banned in 1915 in Iceland; prohibition was lifted in 1953 for sales of wine and spirits. The 1933 vote retained the ban on importing and selling beer containing over 2.25 percent alcohol.

DRUNK DRIVING is opposed by BDOA, which praises a March 1988 study by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

The study showed that certain types of laws can have a big impact on the frequency of driving under the influence of alcohol.

"Administrative license suspensions and revocations, such as those in Illinois.

"Mandatory jail sentences or community service.

"Laws that show no argument about guilt when a specified blood alcohol level is reached in a test.

LAWS AREN'T ENOUGH. Beer Drinkers of America concede. Although toughening the rules and enforcement won't eliminate abusive drinking, the BDOA says, it is a helpful first step.

Next: "The entire thought of driving drunk has to be branded as socially unacceptable behavior that nobody will put up with."

"The only way this can come about is by educating people — making them aware of the problem and then holding their interest long enough to solve it once and for all."

GOOD KING WENCESLAS brings to mind the popular Christmas carol of the same name, and also is cited as the leading 13th-century beer-rights activist. The first Czechoslovakian brewery was built in 1118 in defiance of an order by the bishop of Prague, historians say.

The order was reversed by Pope Innocent IV when King Wenceslas complained on behalf of his God-fearing but thirsty people.

THIS HOLIDAY SEASON, BDOA is targeting recent findings of the White House Conference for a Drug-Free America.

Coming close to likening beer drinkers to drug addicts, the conference said beer and other alcoholic beverages are "gateway drugs" to illicit narcotics use.

Beer Drinkers of America are reacting as the holidays approach because the new year will bring revenue discussions by the 101st Congress as well as the inauguration of America's 41st president.

THE CHOICE of 80 million U.S. citizens, beer, ought not be compared with "illegal, addictive drugs like cocaine, heroin and PCP," the BDOA asserts.

It says the real reason for the debate is monetary.

The White House Conference recommended heavy taxation of alcohol as a way to "win the war against drug abuse."

In August, an effort was made to amend a U.S. House anti-drug bill to increase beer excise taxes by six cents a six-pack to finance a drug war. The amendment lost but the issue is expected to be revived in 1989.

Policeman vindicated in alleged beating of man

EAST ST. LOUIS — Beating charges against a bodyguard of Mayor Carl Officer were considered unfounded after an investigation by the East St. Louis Police Department's Internal Affairs Division.

Sidney Collins, a partner in a local trash contracting service, alleged in an Oct. 28 complaint that Officer Delbert Marion had beat him after he questioned city Comptroller Michael Preston about payments for his trash contract with the city.

Collins' complaint alleged: "Marion said he did not like Collins because he intimidated people."

Marion struck him with an object as he walked away and that Collins had to struggle to get away from Marion to prevent further harm to himself.

Marion beat Collins from the time he left the Council Chambers until he got to the city jail in the basement. Police Chief Isadore Chambers, who issued the report last week, said 18 statements and one oral interview were taken and a videotape from Channel 2 also was viewed during the investigation. He said the statements were inconsistent.

"There was nowhere on this film that showed Mr. Collins being beaten by Officer Marion from the Council Chambers to the jail area," Chambers said in the report. "Based upon all of the above facts and the inconsistency in several witnesses' statements, I find that the complaint... to be unfounded."

State's Attorney John Baricovic, who is conducting a separate investigation into the alleged beating, said Friday about 12 people had been interviewed by his office, and he planned to talk with as many as he could about the incident.

FEELING FIT

A 30 minute exercise session seems to offer as much aerobic benefit as 45 minutes of work, but there are many more injuries when exercise is upped to 45 minutes, says an exercise physiologist at the University of Florida School of Medicine.

When food labels trumpet "pure vegetable oil — no cholesterol," read the small print. Avoid palm kernel oil and coconut oil, both more highly saturated fats than beef tallow.

Do you cool down after a workout, or do you just stop and rest? Exercise physiologist at the Howard Johnson Human Performance Laboratory in Washington, D.C., found that cool-down led to lower levels of the lactic acid that causes cramping.

A 2-ounce chocolate bar doesn't look so good when you remember that it contains the equivalent of 4 teaspoons of butter and 10 teaspoons of sugar.

Racquet sports can produce aerobic benefits like those from running, but you have to play hard. Squash and racquetball, faster games, are better bets than tennis, especially recreational doubles.

2 Sauget Monsanto teams win honors

Two Total Quality Improvement Teams at the William G. Krummrich plant, Sauget, have been named as two of the best in Monsanto Chemical Co. (MCC), an operating unit of Monsanto Co.

The teams' projects are two of 20 that were selected from among 143 entries for presentation at MCC's annual Total Quality Conference of Champions, held Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

"The Conference of Champions is a celebration of continuous improvement throughout MCC. Improvement activity is in every operating area, and the project teams are formed with people from all parts of the organization," said John Boehm, Krummrich general superintendent, Total Quality. The Krummrich plant projects selected for participation in the conference are two outstanding examples of people working together to make quality improvements."

The Chlorine Just-In-Time Quality Improvement Team (QIT) focused on reducing chlorine inventory at the Krummrich plant. By using Monsanto's 10-step method to design improvement, the team devised a just-in-time strategy for ordering and shipping chlorine. Since the strategy was implemented, chlorine inventory has been reduced by 50 percent.

Chlorine Just-In-Time team members include: Boehm; Cheryl Biggs, rail traffic expeditor; Greg Harvey, distribution specialist; Gene Rice, logistics coordinator; Roland Cardwell, raw material/container buyer; Frank Helmer, superintendent, Total Quality; Mike Mertens, TSD project manager; Dan Middleton, superintendent, distribution and shipping; Joe Klefner, MCC manufacturing/distribution; Dave Pins, Charlie Pratte, and Dick Westbrook, MCC, purchasing; and Bill Schrichte, MCC engineering.

Team members also include representatives from the PPG Company (Krummrich's chlorine supplier) and Alton & Southern, Union Pacific, and Fernald Railroad Association railroads.

The Hydrogenations Catalyst Reduction QIT focuses on excessive catalyst losses in the Rubber Chemicals department. Process flow and cause and effect diagrams were developed and a series of non-capital improvements were implemented, which have resulted in significant catalyst savings, a spokesman said.

Hydrogenations Catalyst Reduction team members include: Mike Beasley, Chester Buchanan and Ron Kadell, unit controllers; Robert Walter, research technician; Bob Kelly, project superintendent; Zafar Khan, manufacturing superintendent; Jack Kuykendall and Harry Rayfield, first line supervisors; Ron Weeks and Doug Ziesse, TSD engineers; Gary Johnson, TSD superintendent; John Zelle, manufacturing superintendent; and Bob Wright, RC R&D.

"One of the key parts of Monsanto's Total Quality process involves putting together QIT's made up of people who can focus on solving problems and realize major opportunities for improvement," said Bill Boyle, Krummrich plant manager. "The success of QIT's are evidenced by the two Krummrich team projects named to this year's Conference of Champions. Quality teams have an enormous potential for improving plant operations, benefiting our customers and allowing our employees to get involved."

Channel 5 leads Nielsen, Arbitron surveys — again

The official October television audience survey ratings have been released and for the 24th consecutive time, KSDK-TV (Channel 5) is the local television station in the market.

The ratings periods cover the "sweeps" months of October, November, February, May and July, so Channel 5 has been No. 1 in the ratings for nearly five years now.

Also released was the Nielsen Survey Index (NSI), which carries less weight, according to a majority of television stations and advertising agencies, than the Arbitron survey. Nevertheless, they are important barometers for stations to follow in order to determine whether they are on the right course for large audiences or need to make changes.

Through the week from sign-on to sign-off, Nielsen reports that 30 percent of television viewers turn their dial to Channel 5. KMOV-TV (Channel 6) was second, with 24 percent. RTVI-TV (Channel 2) was third, with 17 percent; KPLR-TV (Channel 1) was fourth, with 9 percent; and KSNL-TV was fifth with 6 percent of the viewing audience.

At 10 p.m., Channel 5 continues to lead with 34 percent while Channel 4 with an aggressive effort came in second with 28 percent. Nielsen's survey was more kind to Channel 4 because the Arbitron report showed Channel 5 had a more substantial lead, 38 to 25 percent.

At 5 p.m., Nielsen showed Channel 5 had 39 percent of the audience while Channel 4 was second with 28 percent. "Family Ties" on Channel 11 finished a solid third, more than twice the Channel 2 news, which had only 6 percent of the audience. "The Gong Show" on Channel 30 finished a week fifth with just 3 percent of the audience.

At 6 p.m., Channel 5 led the pack with 35 percent to Channel 4's 21 percent. And after all the criticism dished down about Channel 2 dropping the news in that time slot, its replacement "Gerardo," scored 16 percent, good for third place. "Facts of Life" on Channel 11 finished fourth with 12 percent while "The Newlywed Game" on Channel 30 delivered 3 percent.

The oldest Nielsen report was at noon where the Channel 5 news beat the Channel 4 news by only 3 percent, 32 to 29. Compare that to Arbitron, which showed Channel 5 doubling Channel 4, 42 to 21 percent.

At 9 a.m., "Live with Regis and Kathie Lee" on Channel 4 had only 14 percent of the audience according to Nielsen; that tied for second place with Channel 11's "Little House on the Prairie." Long-time St. Louis television watchers may remember Regis Philbin when he hosted a Saturday night late-night variety show. Art Fleming recently described Philbin as "one of the buffoons" of the television business. Philbin's ratings for Channel 4 definitely qualify him for buffoon of the month for Channel 4, whose managers probably wish they would have instead scheduled a network game show.

Sequel to 'Cocoon' lacks warmth, humor of original

If there are extraterrestrials roaming through outer space, surely there is a movie producer among them who views earth as a lunatic asylum making and releasing the enervating "Cocoon: The Return."

"Cocoon," a sequel to director Ron Howard's engaging 1985 science-fiction hit "Cocoon."

"Cocoon" dealt with frisky oldsters living in St. Petersburg, Fla. (dubbed "God's Waiting Room" by irreverent locals). They tangled with a team of visiting Antareans whose powers emanated from giant clam-like pods stashed in a nearby swimming pool. Life in the aliens world was eternal, free of sickness and strife, a package deal the bored retirement-home bingo players found irresistible.

"Cocoon: The Return" brings the original cast members back from their trip through the cosmos to St. Petersburg, where they visit families and friends and ponder the merits of eternal life on a planet far from the ones they love.

Jack Gifford, who stayed behind, has lost wife Rose and mourns her interminably despite widow Elaine Strich's efforts to get his mind off the past and himself.

Group leader Wilford Brimley and Maureen Stapleton realize how much they miss their daughter (Linda Harrison) and awkward teen-age grandson (Barret Oliver) who gets lessons in baseball and self-confidence from folksy, pot-bellied grandpa.

Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy are back. Cronyn is ailing but still plays basketball like a 20-year-old and Tandy savors the idea of a job looking after preschoolers.

Charter boat captain Steve Guttenberg rekindles a relationship with Antarean sex kitten Tahnee Welch, and Brian Dennehy shows up briefly as the extraterrestrial leader, Walter.

Don Ameche still is courting ex-showgirl Gwen Verdon, and what happens to both of them proves that Spanish explorer Ponce de Leon really discovered something special when he fell into the Fountain of Youth.

Stephen McPherson's screenplay lacks the warmth and graceful wit of Tom Benedek's original, based on David Saperstein's story. Not even the gifted actors, who chalk up about 400 years of experience between them, can save it.

'Talk Is cheap', solo triumph for Richards

By Alan Sulley
Record review

Keith Richards resisted the idea of doing a solo album longer than any Rolling Stone. But now that he has done it, it's ironic that he's the one who really did it right.

Richards has sharply criticized band mate Mick Jagger for starting a solo career that left the Rolling Stones in the lurch. Richards recently told Rolling Stone magazine that making his solo album, titled "Talk Is Cheap" (Virgin Records), represented a slight failure in that it meant he could not keep the Stones together.

On musical terms, however, "Talk Is Cheap" is nothing but an unqualified triumph. It not only is the best solo album by any Rolling Stone, but better than anything the Stones have done since "Exile on Main Street" 15 years ago.

But that's not to say "Talk Is Cheap" sounds like a Stones album. That comparison begins and ends with three rockers that are firmly in the Stones mold — "Take It So Hard," "How I Wish" and "Whip It Up." Each song is as solid as any rockers the Stones have recorded in recent years.

Elsewhere, "Talk Is Cheap"

stands out as a record with distinct differences from Richards' work with the Stones. On the other tracks, Richards and a first-rate roster of backing musicians take a rollicking ride through a wide variety of basic music styles.

Two songs — "Big Enough" and "It Means A Lot" — favor a hard funk sound. The latter tune, in particular, locks into as tight a groove as one is likely to hear.

There is a strong touch of Memphis soul in "Make No Mistake," a ballad on which Richards trades his raspy vocals with the sweet singing of Sarah Dash.

On "I Could Have Stood You Up," listeners are treated to terrific Chuck Berry-style rockabilly. Part of the credit for the Berry sound goes to Johnny Johnson, Berry's piano player. He lends some of his trademark chops to the song.

Another highlight is the rocker "You Don't Move Me," on which Richards takes a few well-aimed shots at Jagger. And as Richards continues to receive accolades for "Talk Is Cheap," one can easily picture him flashing his devilish grin as he enjoys the last laugh over the Stones-vs.-solo-careers episode.

'The Naked Gun' explosion of sight-gags, zany humor

The laugh-a-minute comedy combine of Zucker, Abrahams and Zucker has struck again with the release of "The Naked Gun: From the Files of Police Squad!" *** (average).

Brothers Jerry and David Zucker and Jim Abrahams are best known for their 1980 and mark comedy of the obviously absurd, "Airplane," and "The Kentucky Fried Movie," the 1977 release that was the trio's first feature film and which teamed them with rising young director John Landis.

The terrible trio always has been adept at stealing comedy tricks of the trade from old movies and television shows. But this time around they robbed themselves, basing their latest film on their own short-lived 1982 television series, "Police Squad."

In the film, Leslie Nielsen repeats his television role of disaster-prone police Lt. Frank Drebin. Nielsen also worked with the trio in "Airplane," playing the doctor who discovers that the real killer on the doomed flight is a meal of bad fish.

In "The Naked Gun," Drebin has just returned from a vacation in Beirut. While there he was able to infiltrate and disrupt

Movie News

By Harry Hamm

a top-secret meeting of some of the world's best-known terrorist leaders and was even able to erase the red blotch on the forehead of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

When landing back home in Los Angeles, Drebin is picked up at the airport by his associate police Capt. Ed Hocken (George Kennedy). Hocken tells Drebin that Drebin's wife divorced him while he was in Beirut and that she has run off with a gymnast who knows more sexual positions than Drebin.

Returning to duty with the Police Squad, Drebin's first two assignments include capturing the ringleader of a gang of thieves and drug dealers, and protecting the visiting Queen of England against an assassination attempt while she attends a California Angels and Seattle Mariners baseball game.

The villain, Victor Ludwig, is played in a rather unfunny fashion by Ricardo Montalban, a straight man who never mentions rich, Corinthian leather.

Priscilla Presley appears as Jane Spencer, Ludwig's private secretary and the blooming love interest of Drebin. After Spencer tells Drebin she believes in safe sex, they wear full-body condoms when they go to bed.

"The Naked Gun," while not as funny as "Airplane," offers numerous laughs. In one hilarious sequence, Drebin gets carried away calling balls and strikes while pretending he is a major-league umpire.

Dr. Joyce Brothers, Red Barber and O.J. Simpson are among those who either have cameos or small roles in the film.

Although every sight gag or joke does not work, "The Naked Gun," there are enough that the film manages to be funny based on the law of averages. Nielsen is a perfect fit as Drebin, who is a police officer in the midst of all the stupidity.

Making "The Naked Gun" was a "dirty job," but somebody had to do it.

Rated PG-13. Running time: 85 minutes.

LESLIE NIELSEN, left, plays zany police Lt. Frank Drebin and Priscilla Presley plays the assistant of one of Drebin's foes in "The Naked Gun: From the Files of Police Squad!"

East St. Louis could lose state tax

By Bonita Gower-Tillman
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — The city would be without sales and income tax receipts for a year if the state withholds them to pay the city's delinquent retirement taxes.

"We asked the state comptroller's office to institute this procedure under state statute and it's in the process now," said Jack Edman, director of legal and legislative affairs for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund.

Edman first announced the debt last month during a hearing.

Before the state task force studying East St. Louis' finances, he said the city had been sending the employees' portion of the retirement benefits, but not its own share.

If the state withholds funds, it probably would be February before the IMRF actually received a payment. Edman said, although the city's December payments could be affected. The $3 million figure is what the city owes up to Oct. 31, he said.

City Treasurer Charlotte Moore said the city receives more than $90,000 a month in sales taxes and more than $125,000 a month in income taxes from the state. She said she was counting on these two allotments to make two full payrolls in December.

"We wanted to make sure employees' got paid before Christmas," she said.

She said the state has not said if replacement taxes also will be withheld along with the other two taxes. That allotment, issued quarterly, will be about $439,938 this year.

On Monday, Mayor Carl Officer had not discussed how the city could avoid having both its sales and income taxes withheld, said James Ingram, a spokesman for the mayor. Officer is expected to comment at Alderman Council meeting at 7 p.m. tonight.

"I don't know what kinds of options we have, but they are probably the same as with the other similar situations we've had," Ingram said. "We can either come up with the money, agree to a payment plan or defer the bill."

City funds have been frozen at least four times by creditors seeking payment of debts. Other bills include a $9 million debt allegedly owed the Department of Labor for mishandling of Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds.

Some officials have hinted that the debts, which make it difficult for the city's government to survive and for employees to be paid on time, are being uncovered as part of a takeover conspiracy by various factions. Moore said she does not agree with that concept.

"Everyone says this is a conspiracy, but I think it's because the task force has been looking at the finances. I think the information is just coming out now because of that," she said.

Haine ends chairmanship by assailing D'Adamo, Bi-State

By Scott Cousins
Staff affiliate

PONTON BEACH — The decision to replace Roger Sulzer as director of the Bi-State Development Agency's Illinois station garage in East St. Louis was sharply criticized at Tuesday's Madison County Transit District board meeting.

Chairman Bill Haine, who was presiding over his last meeting before taking over as the county's state's attorney, called Bi-State's upper management "stupid" and said if any changes are made they should begin with the removal of Executive Director Raleigh D'Adamo.

He also claimed the decision to transfer Sulzer was made because Sulzer was "in the way" of the two Metro East transit districts.

On Nov. 17 Sulzer was transferred from the Illinois facility to St. Louis, where he will be director of support services at the Laclede Landing facility.

Rudy Johnson has been named the new director of the Illinois facility and is expected to begin in January.

He served as director of the Madison County Transit District from June 1985 to March 1986 although technically an employee of the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council.

Before working exclusively for Madison County, he was shared by both the St. Clair County and Madison County districts.

Until Johnson takes over, John Belgeri, director of Bi-State's DeKalbville facility, will manage the Illinois district.

"We try to match the agency's needs with individual skills," he said. "There was nothing against Roger; he's done a terrific job at the Illinois station."

Haine disagreed, saying the transfers were "about as routine as what happened to the wives of Henry VIII."

If Bi-State wants to make routine changes, Haine said, the board should start "with D'Adamo and work on down (through upper management)."

"To me it (Sulzer's transfer) sends a signal that decisions at Bi-State are made with caprice, with absolute disregard for the agency's funding sources and passengers," Haine said.

The decision could seriously harm relations between Bi-State and the Metro East transit districts, he added.

Haine and Jerry Kane, managing director of the Madison County Transit District, said they believed Sulzer was transferred because he worked too well with the Madison and St. Clair counties districts.

"The reason for his removal was his rapport with us," Haine said. "It's a very sad day when mediocrity is rewarded with six-figure salaries (referring to D'Adamo) and performance is rewarded with sanctions," he said.

Haine also criticized Bi-State's board, saying he would write a letter protesting the transfers to Gov. James Thompson, who appoints the five Illinois members of the 10-member board.

Since the transit district was formed in 1981, Haine has been the only chairman of its board.

Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer will appoint a replacement for him. That replacement has not been announced.

Since Haine was named chairman, the district has grown to an organization with more than 50 vehicles and a budget of about $5 million.

Haine said he was "pleased" with the district's accomplishments in those years, but takes little credit himself.

"I'm proud of the agency," he said. "It's a jewel."

"We take thousands of people every day to shopping, hospitals and doctors," he said.

"Most of them are transit dependent—the handicapped, the elderly and the poor."

"It's not due to any skill on my part," he said. "It's due to the dedication of the staff and board members."

County board renews city's police debate

By Rick Arnold
Staff affiliate

BELLELEVILLE — The continuing controversy over East St. Louis' financial problems found its way into the St. Clair County Board meeting last week, as board member Charles Graul suggested the board write a letter to Gov. James Thompson asking him to reassign some of the 16 State Police officers now exclusively patrolling East St. Louis. The board voted 21 to 8 to table Graul's motion. Several board members from East St. Louis were visibly upset with Graul's proposal.

"I'm getting tired of East St. Louis getting kicked in the tail all the time," said board member Roy Mosley, D-East St. Louis. "I'm tired of this stuff."

Mosley said he's tired of county and state officials interfering in city affairs, and trying to take things away from the city. Graul, however, said at the meeting and again in an interview Wednesday that he doesn't want the State Police to abandon East St. Louis.

"That would be as wrong as I feel (only patrolling East St. Louis) is," Graul said. Graul, a Mascoutah Republican, said he just wants the officers to patrol outlying areas of the county as often as they patrol East St. Louis. Graul said it now takes State Police officers between 45 minutes and two hours to respond to accident calls in rural parts of the county.

Graul said he has received numerous complaints about the situation from people in his district.

Bob Fletcher, public information officer in the State Police's Springfield office, didn't dispute Graul's figures, but said response times usually depend on the time of day an accident occurs.

Fletcher said state officials have no plans to change the assignments of any of the officers stationed in East St. Louis.

"The problem is that the City of East St. Louis has such monumental problems that until it gets its financial house back in order, we will be staying there," Fletcher said.

The officers have been patrolling East St. Louis since July 1986, when city officials requested their assistance, Fletcher said.

Fletcher said the officers currently stationed there aren't part of the anti-gang unit or any other specialized unit. Such units have been periodically based in the city in recent months.

Sheriff Mead Justus said sheriff's deputies don't patrol in East St. Louis since they have no jurisdiction there.

Too-close runways at Lambert cause delays

By Sabrina Eaton
P-RJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — Delays, not poor scheduling, are to blame for most missed connections at Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, a General Accounting Office report has concluded.

St. Louis had an above-average percentage of on-time arrivals for five of the eight months examined, but the study suggested the airport's layout contributes to delays and missed connections.

Some runways are built closer together than the Federal Aviation Administration allows for operations under instrument flight rules, so delays result when incoming flights must be staggered because of inclement weather.

Connecting passengers who must pass through security when they go from one concourse to another are sometimes delayed if the X-ray machine breaks and a physical search is required, the study said, but plans exist to build a corridor between concourses to alleviate the problem.

The study was requested by several congressmen who received complaints from constituents about missed connections, said GAO associate director Kenneth W. Mead, who co-authored the report.

"There was a perception that there was a problem at this airport and elsewhere, but we didn't really find any deficiencies in airline scheduling practices," said Mead.

No data was available on the number of passengers who miss connections, but nationwide consumer complaints about the problem to the Department of Transportation rose from 465 in 1986 to 2,055 in 1987.

That increase was roughly proportional to an increase from 12,741 to 44,045 in overall complaints about air service, the study reported.

That rise was attributed to greater consumer awareness and use of the DOT's complaint hot line, as well as confusion that resulted during several airline mergers. Through May 1988, complaints were down 36 percent from May 1987.

"Even though people are missing connections, that doesn't mean connecting times should be changed," Mead said. "If you were to establish connecting times on the basis of how late an incoming flight could be, you'd have a near-infinite number of variables. They should work on avoiding delays in the first place."

Airlines base minimum connection times for airports on the amount of time necessary to transfer baggage between planes parked at the two gates farthest apart, Mead said.

The standard connection time at St. Louis International Airport is 40 minutes, although Eastern Airlines and Continental have agreed to a 30-minute minimum for interline connections because their gates are close together.

FTC program targets senior citizen fraud

By Sabrina Eaton
P-RJ Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — The Federal Trade Commission recently launched a nine-point program to crack down on businesses and individuals that defraud senior citizens.

The measures, which resulted from FTC hearings in March on issues concerning older Americans, will establish liaisons between the FTC and consumer groups to track misleading marketing programs.

Also included in the program are policies for the FTC to identify deceptive prescription drug advertising and assess the need for more law enforcement, advocacy, and education in nursing home, life care and hearing aid industries.

"Since the elderly are such a growing segment of the population, the commission felt the problems and concerns of the elderly require special attention," said FTC spokesman Dee Ellison.

Implementation of the program will depend on budget and resource limitations, and the cooperation of interested groups, she said.

"We have no idea of the costs," Ellison said. "Some of these are ongoing things that will involve being in touch with people on an ongoing basis."

Hucksters offering home improvements they don't deliver, superfluous insurance policies and gold-plated social security cards have preyed on elderly in the St. Louis and Metro East area, said Gloria Williams, an information referral counselor at Mid-East Area Agency on Aging in Brentwood.

Mail order companies, such as the one selling Social Security cards, sometimes use mailers that appear to be from a government agency to trick customers, she said.

"Medical quackery, where people urge them to join some sort of a group instead of going to their doctors, is another biggie," Williams said. "Senior citizens should be alert to these kinds of things."

The Missouri Attorney General's Office recently prosecuted several hearing aid companies that didn't deliver promised goods, or failed to make repairs or promised refunds, said spokesman John Baker.

"Charitable solicitations are another big problem," Baker said. "The Lyndon LaRouche people got the name of one lady in a nursing home, and represented that they were collecting money to fight drugs. They got this woman for thousands of dollars."

According to the FTC report, one American in six is over age 60 and that number is expected to rise to one in four, or 42 million, by 2030.

People over age 65 comprise 17.6 percent of St. Louis's population and 13.2 percent of the state's population, according to census bureau statistics.

In St. Louis County, 11.4 percent of the population is over age 65.

The FTC will assess whether existing laws allow them to act against nonprofit organizations that use fraudulent, deceptive or anticompetitive practices and, if appropriate, suggest changes in its authority.

While continuing to enforce laws regulating funeral homes, the commission will examine whether they meet consumer protection goals, and whether the laws should be kept, changed or repealed.

The commission will also continue to exchange ideas and information with senior citizens groups, the report said.

Being your own boss is costly but the rewards can be great

By Roger McGrath
Staff affiliate

So you want to be your own boss. Buying a franchise is one way to scratch that entrepreneurial itch.

Running his own pharmacy "is something I wanted to do since I was in high school," says Tom Ashley, who bought a Medicine Shoppe franchise in south St. Louis.

But being your own boss is no cakewalk, local franchisers say. "It is for the person who wants to work longer and harder than they've ever worked before," says Jim Smoot, of Fantasy Coachworks Ltd. He tells new franchisees they should work seven days a week for the first two to five years to be successful.

Even then, you will lose money the first year while your franchise develops a customer base, says Art Randall, owner of Mark I Auto Service Centers Inc. But the franchiser is there to hold the newcomer's hand.

And that's the key advantage of buying a franchise: The franchiser is selling you his expertise, the lessons learned from the mistakes he made when starting up his business.

"Franchising offers a business system that greatly reduces the cost and the learning curve," says Jerry Darnell, vice president of franchise development for Medicine Shoppe International Inc.

Franchising has a bright future, Darnell says, noting that one trend watcher predicts franchise stores will account for 65 percent of retail sales by the year 2010. Today, they account for between 35 and 40 percent, according to John Naisbitt, author of the best-seller "Megatrends," who made the projections for a national franchising association.

But the helping hand offered by a franchiser is not cheap.

Mark I's up-front franchise fee is $15,000 with a monthly royalty fee equal to 8 percent of gross sales, plus a 6-percent marketing fee that pays for advertising. Medicine Shoppe's franchise fee is $18,000 with a 5.5 percent royalty fee; Fantasy Coachworks' is $15,000 and 6 percent.

What the franchisee receives is a company name that is already recognized, a proven business and marketing plan, and training and operations manuals that cover every facet of running your own business. Manuals show how to interview potential employees, keep accurate records and maintain reputable suppliers.

"In other words, there's no guesswork," Smoot says.

"I didn't realize what all it entailed until I got into it, starting up a business," says Art Till, who recently bought a Mark I franchise in Brentwood.

Smoot puts new franchisees to work in one of his company stores to give them hands-on experience in the business before they open their own store.

He visits franchisees (24 are open or under development in seven states) every two to three months. Some call him daily, especially the first six months to a year, he says.

Medicine Shoppe accountants review monthly reports from 750 franchisees. From them, they can spot potential problems and recommend corrective action, Darnell says. Another group of staffers visits the pharmacies to spot trouble areas.

All these watchful eyes are franchising's downside, says Lee Gibbs, who recently bought two Jack In The Box restaurants in St. Charles. "But I know they're doing it for my benefit."

The fast-food operator also offers buying power. "With 900 stores, they can buy hamburger meat a heck of a lot cheaper than I can," Gibbs says.

Gibbs fits the Jack In The Box profile: He previously ran his own company, Ashley fits Medicine Shoppe's: He's a pharmacist.

But management experience is not always necessary. "I'm interested in a mechanic who's spent 15 years at Sears and wants to own his own company," Randall says.

Potential franchisees of Fantasy Coachworks must be auto enthusiasts first, Smoot says. "If you don't enjoy what you're doing, it's hard to give it 110 percent," he says. What's the second thing he looks for?

"I look for desire and a commitment to work," Smoot says. And a willingness to learn.

"They're the experts; they've got a track record," Ashley says of Medicine Shoppe.

Ashley wouldn't have opened his own shop without the backup, particularly the marketing advice that the franchiser provided. "It's rough out there alone," he says. "I got my degree in pharmacy, not business."

For him, the Medicine Shoppe formula pays off. "Ninety percent of my time I spend filling prescriptions and counseling patients," Ashley says. "That's what I like most."

Do you have names for people you don't understand?

Crazy. Lunatic. Crackpot. Psycho. Nuts. Slurs like these hide our fear of mental illness. Advertisements hawking "insane prices" and "midnight madness sales" merely reflect our scorn. Derogatory language does something else, too. It keeps us from seeing mental illness for what it really is: a distressing medical disease.

A disease that afflicts over 35 million Americans.

But the stigma of mental illness keeps most of those afflicted from seeking help. Which is tragic. Because today there's more hope than ever. Medical science understands more about the dynamics of mental illness and has discovered new drugs and better therapies to treat it.

In fact, today, 2 out of 3 people who get help go on to lead productive lives. For an informative booklet about mental illness, contact the American Mental Health Fund.

St. Clair threatens Metro Link drop

By Martin Richter
Staff affiliate

BELLEVILLE — An angry St. Clair County Transit District Board on Nov. 23 threatened to withdraw financial support for the Metro Link light rail system unless the Bi-State Development Agency agrees to return two key management employees recently transferred from the Illinois garage in East St. Louis to positions across the Mississippi River.

Roger Sulzer, who was facility director, was named director of support services at Bi-State's main garage on Laclede's Landing.

Fred Eppers, who was superintendent of operations, was named superintendent of the agency's DeBaliviere garage. Eppers has been replaced by Ollie Holmes, and Bi-State has yet to announce a replacement for Sulzer.

Board members said Sulzer and Eppers' absence will hurt the Illinois garage. They said the two men, particularly Sulzer, worked well with the transit board and turned the Illinois garage into a tip-top operation.

The board members say the transfer of the men was a way for Bi-State to lash out at the board because of poor relations between the two entities.

"This move was made to try to put us in our place because we have been giving management a hard time," board member Richard Caesar said. "They can't do anything to us directly, so they did the next best thing."

The board's attorney, Clyde Kuehn, said, "Everybody knows (Sulzer) is being used as a pawn, and he's being removed because they don't like the board, and they resent it."

Board Chairman Delores Lysakowski said Bi-State resents the Transit District's insistence that Bi-State be accountable to the board, and to taxpayers. She said that over the past 2½ years relations between the two groups have "deteriorated to the point where it's ridiculous."

Jerry Kane, managing director of Madison County's Transit District Board, attended Wednesday's meeting. He said he was "outraged" at Sulzer's transfer. The Madison County Board was slated to discuss the transfers at its next meeting.

Bi-State Deputy Director Paul Ballard denied the transfers were made to spite the Illinois transit districts. He said management employees are often shifted, to give them a chance to work in a fresh environment.

"These were part of ongoing moves that we make from time to time," Ballard said. "It's quite routine, really."

Bi-State offers free discount

In keeping with the spirit of the season, the Bi-State Transit System will offer its riders discounts on a variety of merchandise as well as refreshments and tickets to entertainment and sporting events.

Coupon booklets offering discounted items will be available through the rest of the year on all buses in the Bi-State system.

They will also be available to persons purchasing a bus pass.

"This promotion will let people know that Bi-State wants and merits their business and provides incentives to encourage ridership," said R. Raleigh D'Adamo, Bi-State executive director.

"We want to reach out to potential customers to try the bus and occasional riders to use it more often," he said. "At the same time, we want to thank our faithful riders for their loyalty and business."

The coupon books contain discounts from the following sponsors: National Supermarkets, 7-Eleven Stores, B. Dalton Booksellers, CPI One Hour Photo, Blockbuster Video, the Black Repertory Company, Mid America Dance Company, Christmas Carols Festival, the St. Louis Blues Hockey Club and Bi-State's retail store, the Bus Stop Shop.

For information and bus schedules persons may call Bi-State weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 231-2345 in Missouri and 1-800-223-BUS in Illinois.

Devils get tough opening win

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

LEBANON — The Red Devils' season got off to a terrible start Tuesday. But they were away.

Fortunately, the terrible start only lasted 5 1/2 minutes. With 2:30 left in the first quarter, the Devils trailed Lebanon 15-4. A Clinton Harris timeout, some big-time half-court pressure and an 18-0 spurt put the Devils in the lead. Things bounced back and forth the rest of the night, but Venice emerged with a 70-65 victory.

"I felt we should have played much better," said Harris. "We've had good practices almost every day. But we didn't do things tonight we've been doing in practice. But we settled down enough to win."

It was the latest in a string of excellent games the Devils and Greyhounds have played in recent years. And most of the rest, the Devils came out on top.

"We're going to beat them one of these times," said Lebanon coach John Schieppe. "Considering it was their first game, Venice held their composure very well at the end. Venice is Venice. They're always very tough."

It was time to get tough after Lebanon's early assault. Tony Formoso, who paced the Greyhounds with 21 points, nailed a three-pointer and followed with another bucket to make it 15-4. To make matters worse, Venice leader Daryl Jackson went to the bench with 3:35 left in the first quarter with his third foul.

"I just told them to slow down and take their time," Harris said of the timeout.

On the contrary, the Red Devils stepped up the pace considerably and left the Greyhounds in the dust. Six straight Lebanon turnovers led to Venice's 18-0 spurt with Jackson on the bench. Erwin Claggett and Deves Parram ram nailed three-pointers and Hosea King went inside for a pair of buckets as the Devils took a 19-15 lead at the end of the quarter.

It was 22-15 before the Greyhounds (1-2) finally scored again.

"We just got confused a little with their half-court pressure," said Schieppe. "That can happen against these guys."

After that, the game remained close, with 10 lead changes the rest of the way. Claggett, the sophomore who tied for top scoring honors with 17 points, nailed a three-pointer in the final seconds of the first half for a 33-32 Venice lead.

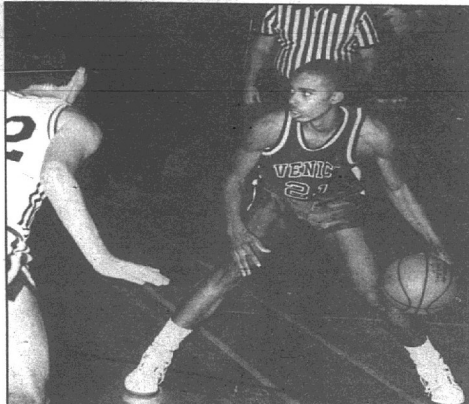

Lebanon held a 45-42 lead in the third quarter when the 6-5 Jackson finally returned.

"Daryl was too anxious early," said Harris. "He got in early foul trouble and I didn't want him to get his fourth foul. Taking him out let the others know they needed to pick up the slack."

They did that very well, but Jackson picked up the slack himself when he returned, getting 15 of his 17 points in the final 13 minutes. He made 8 of 12 from the field, most on his deadly turnaround bank shot.

But Formoso, the three-pointer helped the Greyhounds take a 54-50 lead after three quarters.

But Formoso's three-pointers weren't high school "three-pointers" were making," said Harris. "Those were NBA three-pointers. And they beat us badly on the boards. When they were missing the three-pointers, they were almost always getting one or two more chances. I don't want to take anything away from Lebanon. They're going to win a lot of games."

"We went to the boards very well," said Schieppe. "But as the game progressed we didn't shoot that well. I don't know if we got tired or if their defense got to us."

Lebanon made only 29 of 72 shots and was only 2 of 9 from the free-throw line.

Jackson gave the Devils the lead for good with 2:25 left at 66-65. The Greyhounds missed their last seven shots, including two wild three-pointers by Formoso in the final minute. His final one, with Venice leading 68-65, was an unnecessarily hurried one with 10 seconds left that was an airball. Jackson rebounded and Parram nailed two free throws with seven seconds left to ice it.

"We knew the worst they could do was tie it at the end," Harris said. "We didn't want to foul and give them a four-point play. We won, but I'm not satisfied."

"At least we showed a lot better than the first game in their gym last year (when the Devils shredded the Greyhounds 105-54)," said Schieppe. "They knew we were in the gym tonight."

Pawlak's late FTs lift Lady Warriors

By Gary King
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — If it was a steak, Lady Warrior coach John Hutchings would've sent it back and asked that it be cooked longer. If it was a Christmas present, Hutchings would've asked for the receipt. If it was a fish, it wouldn't have weighed enough to keep.

No, the Lady Warriors' 44-42 win over the Collinsville Kahoks on Tuesday was hardly a Perfect 10, hardly a Rembrandt.

Dramatic, yes. Stirring, yes. A definite confidence-builder. And a win, for Pete sakes. But a pretty win? Nope. In fact, as wins go, this one was ugly enough to make a train take a dirt road.

"I guess we're not in a position to complain about wins," Hutchings said after the Warriors evened their record at 2-2 (1-1 in Southwestern Conference play). "We just need to take them however we can get them. But that was really an ugly, ugly win. We just made too many mistakes."

We tried to make too many things happen that weren't there. When we beat Assumption on Monday night, we shot about 65 percent. Tonight, we're lucky if we shot 30 percent."

After all, what Tuesday night's game lacked in appearance, it more than made up for with dramatics. The game itself sort of resembled something out of Freddie Krueger, but the ending was truly a classic, something straight out of Norman Rockwell.

With 57 seconds left, Granite City's Jennifer Caviness fouled the Kahoks' Jamie Casillas, who sank a free throw to cut the Warrior lead to 40-38. Casillas missed her second free throw, but Collinsville's Cheryl Stinchfield pulled down an offensive rebound and sank a short jumper to stalemate matters at 40-40.

Caviness appeared to have put Collinsville on the rocks when she sank a short-range jumper with 21 seconds left to help Granite City regain its two-point edge, but the Lady Kahoks quickly answered the call with another Casillas bucket to tie the score at 42-42 with 13 seconds left.

In an effort to scrounge one final shot, Granite City's Kim Pawlak rushed the ball across half court. With four seconds left, and Pawlak trying desperately to find an open teammate, the bottom fell out of the Kahoks' comeback hopes when Cathy Brown was whistled for a foul.

Pawlak, who scored a game-high 14 points for Granite City despite a dismal 4 for 18 shooting performance, sank both free throws to sew up the victory for Granite City. Collinsville fell to 1-4 (0-2 in SWC play) with the loss.

"That wasn't a very smart foul we committed there at the end, but it didn't cost us the ballgame," said Kahok coach Paul Harrington. "We missed some easy shots inside, and we were probably a little tentative in the first half."

"But I was proud of our effort in the second half. We're so close to being a good ballclub, but it's just tough to get over the hump. We held Granite City for

All three area boys cage teams play home openers

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

All three Tri-Cities high school basketball teams will be in action on the same weekend for the first time this season.

The Granite City Warriors (4-2) open Southwestern Conference play Friday at Belleville East at 8 p.m. The Lancers are 2-1 with wins over Mater Dei and Belleville West and a loss to Carbondale. East is led by Forry Wells (18.0 points per game) and Serrnell Love (14 per game).

The Warriors will finally come home Saturday for the home opener at 8 p.m. against Wood River. The Oilers are 2-1 and have four players — Mike Oxford, Chris Zupan, Brady Davis and Brook Henricks — averaging in double figures.

The Warriors are paced by junior Matt Cook, averaging 15.5 points. His three-point shooting percentage (44 percent) is higher than his overall shooting percentage (40 percent). Cook is 28 of 59 from three-point range, but only 6 of 21 (29 percent) from two-point range. Cook is fourth in the area in three-point shooting, averaging 4.3 successful attempts per game.

John VanBuskirk is averaging 12.7 points and 5.3 rebounds. Kory Burton is off to a good start, averaging 11.5 points and 6.9 rebounds. Jeff Schaefer (11.1) and Mike Wilkinson are also averaging in double figures. All the starters are in double figures in points and all except Cook are averaging at least five rebounds. Wilkinson, Schaefer and Cook are all shooting better than 70 percent from the free-throw line. Schaefer and Wilkinson are both shooting at least 50 percent from the field.

The Madison Trojans open the season on Friday at Alton at 8 p.m. They open at home Saturday against Hillsboro at 8 p.m.

Alton is 2-0 and averaging 84 points per game. They topped Cahokia 65-55 and Althoff 83-65 last weekend. The Redbirds are led by Kevin Caldwell, who is averaging 24.5 points. Joe Vann is averaging 19.5 points.

The Redbirds, like the Trojans, don't have much size, but it should be a fast-paced game. The Venice Red Devils (1-0) open at home Friday at 7:30 p.m. against O'Fallon Tech. O'Fallon Tech's top returning scorer is senior Lee Henderson, who averaged 13.0 points per game last year. When Tech was 12-10, 8-2 in the Magnet High League.

The Lady Warriors (2-2) go for their third straight win tonight at home against River-view Gardens (3-20 last year). Jennifer Caviness, the Warriors' 6-2 junior center, is fourth in the metro east in scoring (19.5 points per game) and first in rebounding (14.3). Junior guard Kim Pawlak is sixth in scoring (18.3).

Garland not too concerned about grapplers' slow start

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — So, the season isn't exactly off to a roaring start for the Warrior wrestlers. But Matt Garland is not overly concerned.

"We're still trying to get all our guys back healthy and getting everybody up to speed," said Garland. "Even though we've lost five matches, most have them been by 10 points or less. If you stick Jerold Moss and Dale Hutson in there, they can make up the difference."

Indeed, a 43-27 loss to Edwardsville was the Warriors' only defeat by more than 10 points. Moss, who figures to be the 130-pound wrestler, is out for a few more weeks with a separated shoulder. Hutson, the heavyweight, is still fighting to make weight. Garland is hoping he'll be ready for two dual MADISON — December in Madison is different than it used to be a few years back. The basketball season is upon us, but there is no pre-season talk of a trip to Champaign in March.

The pre-season talk at Madison High School is about eligibility, and the Trojans already have enough to worry about without worrying about eligibility.

There is a new varsity coach, Al Collins, so the players and assistant coaches will have to go through the transition of getting used to the new head man.

"We are going to have some eligibility problems this year," Collins said. "But I am glad we are concentrating on academics, even though it will hurt the team. It is very obvious that our kids aren't going to make it unless they get serious with the books."

Collins will be very familiar with most of his players since he has been Madison's eighth grade coach for years. But every coach is different and the team will have to adjust to Collins, which may take some time.

It is not surprising to most that Madison will have a new head coach this year. There is a lot of pressure on the Trojan coach to win. Collins is the third man to run the program since Larry Graham left Madison and took over at SIUE five years ago.

The Trojans' previous two head coaches, Rodney Watson and Rich Essington, lasted two years each before they moved on. In 1985, Watson took the Trojans to Champaign in his first year where they lost to Christian 73-62 in a quarterfinal game.

The Trojans have not won a regional since then, and their fans long for the days when Madison was a perennial Illinois Class A power. The fans still remember the state championships in 1977 and 1981 and it is starting to seem like that was a long time ago.

So what is this talk about eligibility?

Apparently, some of the Trojans have spent a lot more time hitting jumpers than hitting the books, and two of Madison's projected starters are academically ineligible. Aaron Jones, a 6-5 senior, and Andre Mayes, a 5-10 sophomore, are probably Madison's most capable scorers, but they will remain on the sidelines until at least January 14.

This is an especially painful loss since only one of last year's starters returns, Jessie Leonard, a 5-9 senior, is the lone returning starter.

The Trojans went 20-6 last year but the core of that team — Quincy Williams, Clarence Williams — is gone.

Bowland junior bowlers place, win scholarships

Ten bowlers representing the Bowland Junior Leagues made the finals in the John Archway tournament held Nov. 11-13 at Village Bowl in Cahokia.

Taking first place in the Majors Division (average 81.50 or better) was Mark Chapman, the son of Jackie and Gerry Chapman of Granite City. Chris Hildreth, son of Gary and Bev Hildreth of Granite City, took second. Jason Wonders, son of John and Glendene Wonders, took eighth.

Stacy Kukuljan took second place in the Classic Division, which includes bowlers with an average of 170-185. Stacy is the daughter of Denny and Judy Kukuljan.

Jim Ludden placed first in the Masters Division (185 or better) as he rolled a perfect game during tournament play. Bruce David Jr. picked a 7-10 split and took second. He is the son of Bruce and Debbie David. Stacy Jackson, son of Wanda and Tony Jackson, placed third. Scott Mann, son of Connie and Bill Mann, was fourth. Doug Buehrer, son of Dave and Patti Buehrer, was fifth. John Cozlar, son of John and Jan Cozlar, was eighth.

Buehrer wins scholarship Doug Buehrer won a $775 scholarship by defeating Scott Rains of Moline in the Illinois Junior Amateur Tour tournament held at Algonquin Lanes in Algonquin, Ill. on Nov. 27.

Buehrer, a sophomore at Granite City High School, averaged 222 in the semifinals and rolled a 216 to beat Rains 216-203.

Mann, 18, a student at BAC, finished fourth and came home with an $850 scholarship. Ludden, 20, also a student at BAC, won a $175 scholarship in the semifinals. The IJAT offer young bowlers a $175 scholarship for stringing seven strikes in a row.

Telecast of the tournament will take place in late January on Concom.

To bowl in the IJAT, an individual must be under 21 and hold either an ABC or WIBC sanction card. The next IJAT tournament will be in Elgin on Jan. 7-9. Bowland Lanes will be hosting a qualifying tournament for the IJAT in February. Anyone interested in bowling in these tournaments may call Bowland Lanes for further information at 831-6505.

NOTES: Randy Choat of Granite City bowled the 16th 300 game of his career on Sunday at Strike & Spare Lanes in St. Louis. Choat had a 792 series. He was also voted to the first team of the all-Missouri Gateway Intercollegiate Bowling Conference as a representative of Maryville College.

Haynes, Steve Sanders and Jason Briggs — has graduated. Collins is sure to have his work cut out for him this year.

This year's opening starting lineup will probably be comprised of Leonard, 5-8 senior Tim Smith, 6-0 sophomore Chris Griggs, 6-1 sophomore Adam Smith and 6-3 sophomore Federico Walker. Sophomore Brennan Wimberly (5-4) probably will be used in a Spud Webb-like fashion, coming off the bench as a sparkplug.

"We don't have as much talent as some of the teams of recent years, but we still have a very tough schedule," Collins added. "Not only do we have Jones and Mayes ineligible, but now we have also lost James a while, but eventually their talent is going to come through."

Eventually, the Warrior talent came through. But it had to go a long way to find a victory. On the night, the Warriors shot only 34 percent from the field. Cavaness, the Warriors' 6-2 center, was held to 13 points and seven rebounds, while Stinchfield paced the Kahoks with 19 points inside.

"We just forced too many shots and tried to make things happen that weren't there," Hutchings said. "But we're lucky to come away from this thing with a win. When they started sneaking up to us, I thought we were gonna fall apart. But the girls hung tough. They didn't quit."

"I think if we can iron some of the kinks out, we'll be OK."

Of course, keep in mind that what is considered a down season in Madison is a pretty good season most other places.

"Dale was at 289 and we're hoping we can get him down to 275 by (today)," Garland said. "When you're facing teams like Bloomington, Pekin and Roxana, you had better be at full strength if you want to compete."

Still, the Warriors are 2-5, so Garland is far from completely satisfied.

"I'm not completely not worried," he said. "We're still trying to find the right chemistry. I'm like Whitey Herzog, with a different lineup every time out. We've had some kids wrestling varsity early in the year who were at Coolidge and Grigsby (junior high schools) last year. This is a big step up."

Five freshmen have already wrestled in varsity matches and have a combined record of 2-13.

"But guys like Chris Hoffotot,

Russ Buchek, Doug Norton, Ryan King and Mark McKeehan are the future of this program and they have 'good potential,' Garland said of the freshmen.

Senior Rich Fenoglio returned last weekend and won three of four matches in the 140-pound division. That was a big step toward solidifying the lineup.

"And it really helped having Chris Hankins move down to 163 (where he went 3-1 last weekend)," said Garland. "Hankins, Todd Hutchinson, Bryan Pritchett, Brent Davis, Fenoglio and Dan Grayson are solid for us. We know what they can do and now it's just a matter of who beats out who in the other weight classes."

"We're making do with what we have now and as we get the lineup straightened out we'll get better," said Garland.

"Brent and Pritchett (also 7-0) have just had tremendous success," said Garland.

The Warriors will face a Civic Memorial team tonight which won its own tournament last weekend. And the Eagles, who produced the illustrious Kristoff family, have a strong tradition. Friday's opponent, East St. Louis, always has a couple of outstanding individual performers.

"We're making do with what we have now and as we get the lineup straightened out we'll get better," said Garland.
